Eildon Primary School has begun providing daily free hot meals to its students. The connection between a healthy diet and development in children is well-recognised and the school hopes the program will make a positive contribution to student wellbeing. The meals are served by staff at 11am each school day and there is enough food to cater for all students. The hot meals are rotated on a random basis and include pumpkin soup, rice and tuna, chicken noodle soup, baked beans, spaghetti and sauce, fruit and milk. Parents are welcome to still send lunches which the children can eat in addition to or instead of the daily free hot meals, either at first or second break. The school would like to thank their staff for helping out with the new initiative which, so far, has proven very popular with the students. -S

Major boost for emergency services in Northern Victoria

THE Victorian Government has invested $2,166,363 in emergency services in Northern Victoria to provide essential operational equipment, vehicles, appliances and minor facility improvements for local volunteers.

Member for Northern Victoria Jaclyn Symes announced 31 local Country Fire Authority (CFA) and Victorian State Emergency Services (VICSES) would receive additional funding to help protect their local community.

"These important projects will give our hardworking CFA and VICSES volunteers in Northern Victoria the equipment and amenities needed to effectively carry out their duties," Ms Symes said.

Locally, $2263 is going to Acheron CFA for operational expenses, $193,333 for vehicles and appliances to Alexandra Fire Brigade, and $48,000 to Buxton CFA for minor facility improvements.

$120,000 is also going to the District 12 Headquarters for vehicles and amenities.

Unfortunately, the other CFA stations and SES groups in our area missed out this time around.

The investment is part of the government's 2020/21 Volunteer Emergency Services Equipment Program (VESEP) which is providing more than $14 million to 240 grant recipients across Victoria.

The annual grants program gives volunteer emergency service groups the opportunity to apply for grants of up to $150,000 to purchase equipment including vehicles, trucks, tankers, watercraft and trailers, and for minor improvements including refurbishments and amenities, such as kitchens and change rooms.

The government matches every $1 paid by volunteer groups with a $2 co-contribution

Discussion about forests

Thursday, 18, Home Creek Spring Creek Landcare hosted an engaging discussion on the past, present and future of the forestry industry within Murrindindi Shire. Ken Deacon from the Rubicon Forest Protection Group and John Woodley from Taggerty Farm Forestry were our speakers. Ken and John came with a wealth of experience both within the industry and as close observers of a temperate rainforest they believe is in crisis.

Our Landcare group's mission is to educate and make people aware of local land management issues. Having previously engaged retired forester and native logging advocate Ross Rummails, we wanted to balance the argument with a different perspective.

The historic Fawcett Hall attracted close to 50 concerned residents including councillors, environment professionals and landowners from across the shire.

Ken presentred a story of rapid and ongoing destruction by the logging industry in the Rubicon and Royston River catchments. Believing our post 1939 for both wildlife and ecotourism, Ken made a strong case for stopping logging, Scarred forests have no benefit for the wellbeing of our visitors, local businesses and residents of Murrindindi Shire.

Next, John Woodley spoke of his pledge to prove Lloyd Gould wrong, believing he could grow a better quality saw log than the native forest. Anyone who has visited John's plantations could not but be inspired by his magnificent trees. By creating the best conditions for saw logs, John has shown that it needn't take a lifetime to grow high quality timber and believes that farm forestry is a more sustainable model than taking from our native forests.

Our Landcare group plans to host a farm forestry field day in the near future.

Logging

LOGGING destructs and causes pollution. Smoke pollution from fuel reduction burns is a necessarv inconvenience. However smoke pollution from the cleaning up of harvested near-old growth forests have timber crops is another unique biodiversity value reason for why we should call a halt to the logging of our pristine temperate rainforests.

> We live in our shire because we enjoy a clean air environment yet the weekend of March 20 was terrible. The smoke affected our eyes, our lungs and could even be detected on the washing on the line.

Why can an industry supporting a few so severely inconvenience a majority?

down Cutting ash forests mountain reduces our capacity to sequest carbon, scars our landscape and destroys a unique ecosystem for generations to come.

When will clear thinking prevail? Logging our forests is all about money. Short term gain causes long term pain.

Every day when I see massive B-double trucks roll past carrying huge logs, I think of the proud monarchs of our temperate rainforests that only recently stood tall.

The current logging in the Snobs Creek catchment completely defies logic and common sense, as this clear mountain stream, it's water quality now threatened, is the crucial, vital ingredient for our Snobs Creek Fish Hatchery.

THUMBS UP: To Michelle (Shelley) for the wonderful help given to me on renewing my application for a parking permit with the new system. She was excellent. Thanks Michelle. You are an asset in the shire along with Christie. Well done ladies.

THUMBS UP: To Eildon Primary for providing free hot lunches for the students.

THUMBS UP: To the Kinglake Friends of the Forest for holding the greater glider spotlighting tour on Saturday, giving locals a chance to see some of the amazing animals living in Snobs Creek Valley and raising awareness about the negative impact of logging in the area.

Funding boost for Great Victorian Rail Trail

THE Great Victorian Rail Trail will receive $1.2 million in State Government money for standout art installations and signs, with a further $1.7 to develop a new rail trail in Eildon.

www.murrindindibusiness.com.au

The trail is one of 30 regional Victorian projects announced last week to receive funding through the $46 million Regional Tourism Investment Fund - Stimulus

Mitchell, Murrindindi and Mansfield councils, in conjunction with Regional Development Victoria, are behind the rail trail project.

The funding will go towards creating large scale 'x-factor' art installations along the trail, which aims to boost new and repeat

Sign upgrades from Tallarook to Mansfield and Alexandra will provide interpretation along the route and also guide users into town centres to support economic activity and business.

The trail funding is a fantastic outcome for the Murrindindi, Mitchell and Mansfield

The Great Victorian Rail Trail is a standout tourism asset, as evidenced by record numbers of visitors in the past year.

Residents and visitors alike are seeking to discover the natural beauty of the area.

The Regional Development Victoria announcement builds on the work that the three councils have done to set out a threeyear strategic development plan to enhance and elevate the rail trail to the next level.

These pieces of 'x-factor' large scale sculptural art installations and wayfinding signage will improve and innovate the trail experience to provide a premium visitor experience.

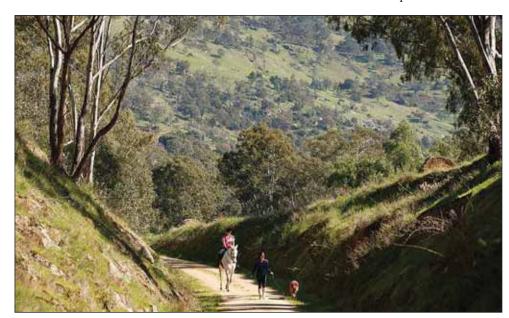

The artworks are expected to become tourist attractions, and it is expected that the art installations have the potential to become as iconic as the silo art trails in regional Victoria.

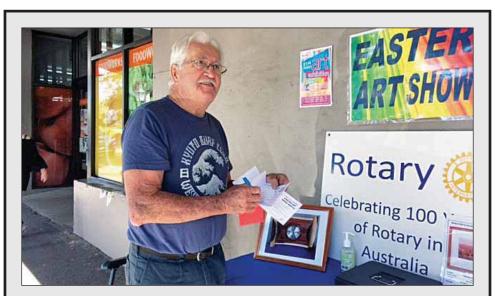

Minister for Tourism, Sport and Major Events Martin Pakula said the fund was part of the $465 million Victorian Tourism Recovery Package.

"Victoria has many natural appeals but the main reason we lead the country in tourism is because we invest in our attractions and its people," he said.

Murrindindi Shire Council also received $1,700,000 for a rail trail between Blue Gums and the Eildon Rail Trail. The aim is to "connect tourists and cyclists from the tourist precints and Outdoor Education Centre to Eildon townships and businesses.'

After a hiatus last year due to COVID-19, the Rotary Club of Alexandra is gearing up to run their Annual Art Show over the Easter weekend at Alexandra Community Leisure Centre. Over 330 entries have been received, paintings, drawings, sculptures, and even fibre art, needle felting to be precise. Judge Christie Tiarni will cast a critical eye over the works. Winners in most categories will be declared on opening night, Good Friday, April 2 from 7pm. The most popular work will be decided via a poll of show visitors and decided at midday on Easter Monday. Rotary members have been hard at work selling raffle tickets outside FoodWorks in recent weeks, all to raise funds to continue important community programs. ## Black Saturday funding available for community-led initiatives

TWELVE years on from the devastating 2009 Victorian bushfires, FRRR is offering another round of funding to support impacted communities as they continue to rebuild, reconnect and recover.

Appeal Fund (VBAF), the funding is available through FRRR's Grants for Resilience and Wellness (GR&W) program and the Grants for Resilience & Wellness Kinglake Ranges (GR&W Kinglake) program.

The grants of up to $20,000 will support not-for-profits and community-based organisations to lead projects that aid recovery and build community resilience.

The GR&W and GR&W Kinglake Ranges programs fund initiatives that improve mental health and wellbeing of communities and individuals; enhance wellbeing and resilience of pre-school, primary and secondary school-aged children and young people; strengthen community connections, sense of place and community identity; and increase the community's ability to prepare for future disasters.

To date, FRRR has awarded more than $4.5 million in grants to local groups, thanks to VBAF funding, which comes from the generous contributions by the general public following the Black Saturday bushfires in 2009.

Through this round of funding there is a total of $360,000 available for GR&W Supported by the Victorian Bushfire grants and a total of more than $700,000 available for GR&W Kinglake projects.

Nina O'Brien, FRRR's Disaster Resilience and Recovery Lead, said that the impact of COVID-19 has increased the need to support recovering communities to reconnect socially and continue to enhance their wellbeing.

"Despite the restrictions that the pandemic has put on people coming together, local groups report services and activities that enhance wellness and resilience are still well attended," she said.

"The GR&W programs provide flexible support to respond to issues as they emerge. More than a decade since the fires, communities are focusing on building resilience for the future."

Applications for both GR&W and GR&W Kinglake close at 5pm on Wednesday, April

Potential applicants should visit the FRRR program webpages at frrr.org.au/funding/ disaster-resilience-and-climate-solutions/

Easter message

John Jessop, The Anglican Parish of Marysville and Buxton

THE word 'Easter' comes from 'Eostre' a Saxon goddess celebrated at the spring equinox in the northern hemisphere.

For Christians, it is the annual festival celebrating the resurrection of Christ.

The date of Easter varies and is related to the Jewish Passover full moon but is calculated differently in the eastern and western churches.

In the Bible the Passover (Hebrew 'pesah', Greek and Latin 'pascha', hence the adjective 'paschal') is Israel's annual commemoration of the deliverance from captivity in

In the New Testament, Christ is the Christian Passover victim and embodies the salvation from sin, evil and even death.

This is all very well but what does it mean for us? In order to make sense of the Resurrection, we need to include the crucifixion.

The crucifixion involved Jesus being betrayed by one of his chosen followers, denied by one of his closest friends, Peter, lied about, and suffering gross injustice and finally suffocating and dying in agony on a Roman

In other words, Jesus endured all the evil that human beings can inflict on other human

At any point he could have avoided his ordeal but he chose not to. Why? He did this to show that no amount of evil, not even death, can extinguish or deflect God's love.

This might seem ridiculous, but the truth of it is seen in the Resurrection. Without the Resurrection, the crucifixion just would be another Roman statistic. As it is, the Resurrection shows that nothing can extinguish God's love.

Aspects of the Resurrection are bound to remain a mystery but one thing is certain, the disciples were convinced that they had seen, conversed with and eaten with the risen Lord.

As a consequence, their lives were transformed from fearful, grieving men and women, to bold courageous apostles and leaders of the Church who were determined to proclaim the Good News of God's love in the risen Christ Jesus.

For me, the best example of this is Peter who had denied his Lord but who, in the Resurrection, became the bold leader of the persecuted Church.

The symbols of Easter tend towards new life: spring flowers (in the northern hemisphere), Easter eggs and Easter bunnies.

It is the constant renewal of life that we celebrate at Easter. Resurrection is not something that might happen sometime after we have died, it is for the here and now.

Human beings have the capacity to forgive and be forgiven. They have the capacity to begin again after loss or disaster.

The human spirit cannot be crushed by evil. Jesus demonstrated this for all time and for all humanity. This is a great gift but like all gifts, is only of use if accepted.

Happy Easter.

Alexandra Seniors report

by Philip Smith

ALTHOUGH the crowd was down a little again this week it did nothing to quieten the noise level, as the chair had its usual trouble calling the rabble to order. The club song bought everyone back into focus and we discussed the goings on of all and sundry over the past week. Nothing earth shattering to report, just an update on treasurer David's progress toward recovery, and preparing for his next operation.

With stand-in jokester Roma absent for the day, the job of making us laugh this week was shared by John and Stefanie with some extra material thrown in by Jean, as usual. As there will not be a meeting this week due to Good Friday, we brought the FoodWorks raffle forward a week, and a very pleased John was rewarded for his great joke telling by winning the $20 gift card.

President Gai got the impression that the natives were becoming restless to move to the lunchroom for our usual great afternoon tea, so she closed the meeting and the rush for the door began. With everyone well nourished the Card Sharks and the UNOists then got down to business for the rest of the afternoon.

Here is the usual reminder about the weekly schedule at the hall. It presently consists of social meetings each Friday at 1pm, with the first one of the each month being the business meeting. The carpet bowlers play every Tuesday and Thursday at 1pm. The bridge group play on Monday afternoon at present and the card sharks play 500 every Friday after the meeting, as do the UNO group. Of course all of these activities are being done while applying the appropriate sanitising and distancing procedures until the situation changes.

We would love to hear from anyone who is at all interested in any of these activities. Either just turn up to the hall in Bayley Street or get in touch with President Gai or myself on 0467 369 092 for more information.

Bowls: Tuesday's roll up was down a little but the competition wasn't any less enthusiastic, with Roma's blacks coming out on top 9-7 over Gai's yellows. Thursday had Kevin and Marion doing battle, and Marion's yellows had a comfortable 14-2 win.

Interesting facts: The fastest moving muscle in the body is the one that opens and closes your eyelids. A rooster cannot crow unless its neck is full extended.

Useless information: The average snail has a top speed of 0.05km per hour. The longest recorded flight by a chicken is 13 seconds.

Simpsons fuel rebrands

PEOPLE driving past Simpsons Fuel may have noticed some changes in recent weeks, but rest assured, the changes are only cosmetic.

Sarah Simpson from Simpsons Fuel explained that "Caltex is essentially changing their name to Ampol. They have been Ampol in the past and when they merged with Caltex, they chose to use the Caltex name. Now they're going back to using the Ampol name."

Although not something they chose, Sarah said, "It's been really nice for us to be able to refresh everything and get some new signage and new advertising."

Although the branding has changed, everything else will remain the same at their stations in Eildon and Alexandra.

The Alexandra site had a refresh of the Caltex branding only a couple of years ago, but now all of Australia's Caltex 1900 petrol stations are changing to Ampol.

The Eildon site is expected to rebrand in July, and all the other local Caltexes, such as those in Mansfield, Merton and Marysville, will all change to the Ampol branding by the end of 2022.

Ampol started in the 1940s, then merged with Caltex in the mid-1990s. The Ampol brand is well known to people aged over 35

"Personally, I think it's great that we're returning to [Ampol]. It's a really well-known name to those over 35. To me, Ampol's always stood for an Australian company, they were always very proudly Australian, and they always supported smaller Australian businesses brought together under the Ampol name," Ms Simpson said.

The new Ampol logo uses the colours and font shape of the past, with the blue and white 'A' being new.

Saraha was keen to let people know that they are the same and that it is the same company. "There have definitely been rumours that we've sold, or that they aren't involved in the petrol station anymore, but that's not true. We're definitely still here. We've been with Caltex or Ampol for more than 30 years now. It's a company we're sticking with."

Discussions at March council meeting

THE March Ordinary Council Meeting was held on Wednesday, March 24 via a Zoom meeting with all councillors in attendance.

Questions of council

Jack Russell of Yea asked what pre-emptive practices are currently in place for council to identify risk matters such as pre-site inspections and reporting scheduled sites for rectification for a critical risk, and how many employees of council are assigned to monitor reports on all three levels of risk on a committed daily basis with the total hours on an annual basis.

Council responded by detailing a comprehensive risk reporting and management system is implemented that all staff can use to report risks, incidents and potential hazards identified. For public infrastructure, council employs a Road Management Plan inspector, inspects all public playgrounds monthly and conducts regular asset condition audits on all of their assets.

All employees undergo regular training, workplace inspections occur routinely, and council has Snap Send Solve in place to assist the public with reporting hazards and risks. Council's Enterprise Risk Management Committee and the Audit and Risk Committee meet on a regular basis to oversee, Risk Management policies, procedures, audits and progress.

Grants and contribution program – monthly allocations

Officers approved the following grants and contributions; $4948 for Upper Goulburn Landcare Network's Connecting Through Compost, $5000 for Murrindindi Food and Wine Inc's Put Murrindindi On Your Table, $2200 for Alexandra Football Netball Club's Anzac Spirit and Community Celebration, $16,200 Park Life Alexandra Insta Home – Rapid Built Housing Project and $248 for Marysville and District Kindergarten's bus hire for excursions.

Councillor representative appointment - Rubicon Outdoor School

Rubicon Outdoor School requested that

Council appoint a representative to its school council and upon discussion, have appointed Councillor Damien Gallagher as the Councillor Representative.

Councillor's report – inclusive Australia Day celebrations

Mayor Sandice McAulay said, "With respect to our desire to ensure Australia Day celebrations are inclusive of our indigenous community, we recently had a very productive discussion on the matter with Matthew Burns, CEO of the Taungurung Land and Waters Council."

"Matthew indicated that the best outcome would be for change at the highest levels of government to ensure there is adequate recognition of the impacts and consequences of the European settlement on the Aboriginal land. Simply moving the day of Australia Day without addressing the underlying need for this recognition could simply sweep the matter under the carpet and not advance the cause of indigenous recognition."

"With this valuable input from the CEO of the Taungurung Land and Waters we will continue this important conversation going forward with the community."

Councillor's report – supporting Gender Equality Month

Councillor Damien Gallagher urged that during Gender Equality Month, and as Victoria prepare for the implementation of the Gender Equality Act 2020 on Wednesday, March 31, young people choose to not act like those currently in Federal Government.

"At this pivotal point, I say to young people, young men and young women do not take your cues on appropriate behaviour from the recent disgraces of our national parliament and reflect instead upon the advances of immediate region."

"There is more work to do of course, but I am proud to be associated with the Murrindindi Shire Council organisation at this time as leaders in the implementation of our inclusion and equity policy."

Around the recycling cycle

RESIDENTS of Murrindindi, Mitchell and Strathbogie Shires were invited to attend a Zoom meeting on Wednesday, March 24, to find out what happens to the items we put into our recycling bin. It explored not only some useful dos and don'ts, but also took the participants through the cycle at the processing plant, providing a fascinating insight.

The session was run by Douglas Blair from Rethink Education Centre, and supported by Grace Davis-Williams, Regional Waste and Resource Recovery Education Officer working with Murrindindi Shire Council.

After our recycling bins are collected, the trucks drive to a material recovery facility (MRF). The MRF for our area is located in Bellfield, near Ivanhoe. At this facility, the contents are sorted into five different types of recyclables. Paper is the largest, with the other types being glass, plastic, and steel and aluminium.

Paper includes cardboard, with milk cartons sorted with plastics. Glass recycling can only include glass bottles and jars as they have a specific melt temperature. Drinking glasses and panes of glass cannot be included. Plastic can only be rigid plastic, not plastic bags or other soft plastics, with some exceptions detailed later. Once they have been through the initial sorting process, they are taken to another facility where they are sorted into codes from one to seven. Metals are sorted into steel and aluminium, and even spray cans can be included, as long as they're completely empty.

The first step is that the truck backs into the receiving area and drops the load onto the floor. At this point, it becomes the property of the re-processor. The pile eventually gets about two storeys high. From there, it's loaded onto a conveyor belt and taken into the building.

Manual sorters remove garbage items by hand, and these items are transported to a waste compactor and are buried in landfill. Next comes the removal of large items, such as boxes and big olive oil bottles.

The remainder of the recyclables then start their journey in the automated process. Mechanical screening machines, known as trommels, are used.

The material is dropped into trommel one (T1) and things which have a degree of weight to them are sorted from the other items. This separates out a lot of the paper, such as newsprint and cardboard, although 50 per cent of the paper remains to be collected.

T2 is the second trommel, removing broken glass and therefore potential contamination. The remaining material then bounces up the steep conveyor belt where matter drops to the middle. As flat paper can't roll, it's separated out.

The third trommel removes garbage which might have been missed, followed by

RESIDENTS of Murrindindi, Mitchell and Strathbogie Shires were invited to attend a Zoom meeting on Wednesday, March 24, to find out what happens to the items we put more manual sorting to remove sheet paper from sheet plastic. This needs to be manual as there's currently no way for a machine to tell the difference.

Sheet plastic shouldn't go into the recycling bin in the first place. Sheet plastic includes plastic bags. They can only be recycled via the Redcycle bins in some supermarket chains, who make it into things like landscaping screens. Unfortunately, it's an exclusive contract, so Redcycle bins are unlikely in the area any time soon. Likeminded people could consider taking each others' sheet plastic when they go to areas with Coles and Woolworths supermarkets.

Once sheet plastic had been removed from the sheet paper in the factory, the paper is then squeezed into a one tonne bale, ejected and stacked for transport. Around 380 tonnes of material go through the MRF every day, with around 190 tonnes being paper.

Paper is the lowest price product, and most won't be traded but instead used by a company for a secondary resource, such as a paper mill making feed stock for corrugated cardboard, or backing for plasterboard.

By the time the paper is baled, it's below four per cent contamination, with glass and soft plastic being the main issue. Cleaner paper is worth more, so the price is lower due to the contamination.

Steel is the next thing to be sorted, and this of course can be done through magnets, in this case an overhead belt magnet. It's then baled and put into a furnace to remove the organic materials.

The recycler is then left with aluminium, plastic, liquid paper cartons (such as milk cartons) and glass.

Glass is next as it's heavier. Everything is put into an air classifier, where air blows across the conveyor belt. Lightweight materials lift and are carried up into a cyclone. This is the last process through which all paper is removed.

In the T4, the holes are not round but rectangular, and are the right shape for aluminium cans as most are the same size. Everything with a different shape remains.

Some cans get bent out of shape, but as aluminium is valuable, another machine then used, known as an eddy current separator. In the process, magnets used south/south and north/north to make the cans into mini magnets through changes in the magnetic field. Small amounts of electricity are generated inside the cans and when it encounters a like field at the end of the conveyor, the cans can fly while everything else drops.

Plastics remain. They all need to be squeezed and compressed. There's no need to remove plastic lids from plastic bottles when putting them in your bin as the bottles are all spiked so the air can escape. If this didn't happen, the lids would fly off during the compression creating a very dangerous environment. Everything is then baled together and taken to a super-MRF in Springvale where they use an optical sorter to separate the plastics into the different codes. It is at this point that the liquid paper cartons are removed.

All of the glass is now likely to be broken. It's put into another trommel to separate the small pieces of broken glass from the larger pieces. The different sized pieces are stored in a hopper as it can't be baled. They are taken to Laverton for crushing, where they need a mix of small and large pieces. The Laverton facility also uses technology to separate out the three glass colours – green, clear and amber. They can process a tonne of glass with only one gram of contamination. In Spotswood, it can be repurposed as glass packaging, road base or aggregates in concrete. There is also work being done to develop further markets.

Another Rethink Recycling session is set to be held on Thursday, June 3 from 7 to 8.15pm. To book, visit rethinkrecycling21. eventbrite.com.au

Recycling quiz

- 1. Are McDonalds cups recyclable?
- 2. Are milk cartons recyclable?
- 3. Can batteries be put in your recycling bin?
- 4. Which item is the hardest to separate out in the recycling process?
- 5. Can shredded paper be recycled?
- 6. Can heat-activated receipts be recycled? These receipts are the ones which turn black when left in the sun).
- 7. Should you crush the aluminium cans which you put in the recycling bin?
- 8. Should you do anything special with aluminium foil or trays before they go into the recycling bin?
- 9. Can you recycle aluminium containers lined with paint or plastic?

10.Can you recycle steel bottle tops?

11.Can you recycle pet food sachets?

12. Can you put green waste into a recycling bin?

Answers

- 1. No. The cups are made from liquid paper with a low amount of plastic in the cup. It's not worth the time to re-process at the moment.
- 2. Not at the moment as they're made from liquid paper, but this may change in the future so you can keep putting them in your recycling bin. Trials are underway and new markets are being sought. They are currently sorted and then used as thermal mass to offset fossil fuels.
- 3. No, as they can start fires in the truck or in the processing facility. They can be recycled though. They can be dropped off, free of charge, to council disposal depots.
- 4. Paper bags.
- 5. No. It ends up as paper dust and damages the machinery. It's best not to shred paper, but if you must, then use it in your compost bin. Consider using a black marker to cross out important details instead of shredding the paper.
- 6. No. It contaminates the paper being sorted and is not valuable.
- 7. No. The machines are designed for the standard aluminium can shape and size.
- 8. Yes. Roll them up into a ball. This means that it's in a shape which doesn't resemble paper. Consider rolling all of your easter egg foil together in a ball.
- 9. Yes. The furnace will deal with it.
- 10. Yes. Consider putting them in a steel can and closing them in. More steel is used for bottle caps than cars. They're important to recycle.
- 11. No. Metalicised plastics can't be recycled.
- 12. Absolutely not. It can lead to the whole collection in the truck being taken to landfill.

THE Fire Danger Period for Murrindindi Shire ceased on Monday, March 29, however even though we are starting to experience milder conditions, there is still potential for fires to occur

If you burn-off, please be mindful that the vegetation is still very dry and it is easy to lose control of small burns. Take care and make sure you have water available at all times and never leave your fire unattended.

Your local CFA brigade can provide you with advice on how to burn off safely, and how to prepare yourself and your property for the next fire season.

Before lighting a burn-off, people are urged to contact their neighbours and register their burn with the Burn-Off Notification Line on 1800 668 511.

Always check and adhere to council's local laws and regulations before burning off. Further information can be found at murrindindi.vic.gov.au/Your-Council/Emergency-Management/Bushfire-Prevention-and-Planning Council requires that people have adequate means available at all times to prevent the escape of fire and to extinguish the fire; the burn area must be cleared of flammable material for a minimum radius of three metres; the fire must be extinguished if you are directed to do so by an authorised officer; ensure all ashes are spread and thoroughly extinguished at the completion of the burn; the smoke must not cause a nuisance; the burn pile must be suitably dry and not include damp or green materials; and the fire must be adequately supervised, with an adult person present at all times.

If your land is less than one hectare, the burn pile must not exceed one metre by one metre

If your land is more than one hectare, the burn pile must be no more than 20 cubic metres, the fire must not be lit if wind speed exceeds 15 kph, and the burn pile must not be located closer than five metres to the property boundary or five metres to any building.

Any fire that does not meet these conditions requires a permit from council.

Trade rules to protect environment and irrigators

THE Victorian Government is consulting the community to manage delivery risks for Victorian irrigators and help protect rivers from unseasonal high flows.

Acting Minister for Water Richard Wynne released a regulatory impact statement (RIS) for consultation on proposed new operating rules for Goulburn to Murray inter-valley trade arrangements.

"We know that delivery risks in the Murray are real, that's why the rules we're proposing will make sure that water traded from the Goulburn can be delivered each year. We want to support our irrigators that rely on trade without affecting others or damaging the environment," Mr Wynne said.

"The arrangements we've had in place over the last two irrigation seasons worked to keep flows to more reasonable levels, we're now proposing a new rule that makes sure we can deliver trade under more sustainable lower flows."

In 2019, the government announced a review of the inter-valley trade rule for the Goulburn River, following two consecutive years of sustained high flows over summer and autumn that caused damage to the banks and ecology of the river.

The high flows are driven by low water availability from New South Wales and increasing trade volumes in recent years.

The initial review showed that the current rules are not protecting the environment of the lower Goulburn River and do not provide a level playing field for all water users to trade water.

Releasing the RIS is the next step for establishing new long-term operating, trade and tagging rules to support trade opportunities, protect existing entitlement holders across Northern Victoria and minimise damage to rivers.

Consultation will run online and face-to-face for six weeks, closing on Friday, April 30. Feedback from the community will be considered before a final decision prior to Thursday, July 1.

Illegal trail bike riding and four-wheel driving on the rise in Victoria

VICTORIA'S parks, forests and reserves have become more popular than ever for trail bike riding and four-wheel-driving over the last 12 months, and while there is an extensive network of roads and tracks open to the public, illegal offroad activity is increasing.

The Conservation Regulator has issued more than 100 infringements for off-road vehicle use by trail bike riders and four-wheel-drivers since Friday, January 1.

Riding and driving off-road can cause soil erosion and damage native vegetation. The ecosystems in our forests are fragile and vehicles can destroy wildlife habitat.

Authorised officers are patrolling key locations across the state, targeting illegal trail bike and four-wheel driving activity, and on the spot fines of $165 apply. The maximum fine for riding or driving on closed roads is $3300, while damaging wildlife habitat can result in a fine of more than $8000.

Most riders and drivers do the right thing by following normal road rules that apply on public land. The Conservation Regulator works closely with recreational groups and asks them to consider these key points.

All vehicles including trail bikes must be registered and trail bike riders must hold a current motor bike licence.

Stay on the formed roads and vehicle tracks. Do not ride on natural terrain, in streams, or on informal single tracks.

For your own safety, always ride with others and wear full personal protective equipment (PPE), including a helmet. Always carry a first aid kit, as well as a reliable means of communication. Unload and start your trail bike away from residents adjoining state forests. Keep your speed and noise down when in, or near, camping and picnic areas, or approaching other forest users

For more information on the rules and regulations please visit ffm.vic.gov. au/recreational-activities/trail-bike-

Improving safety for ambulance workers

paramedics and first responders will time," she said. soon be using a tool to predict violent and unacceptable behaviour when responding to patients in need of care.

Developed in Norway, this is a world first for any ambulance service and makes it safer for frontline healthcare workers to do their job.

Ambulance Victoria paramedic Brook Sumner has been responsible for the rollout of the Behaviours of Concern (BOC) tool and said it's a game changer.

"Every year, 600 incidents of occupational violence are reported by our workforce and while physical assaults are rare, our staff regularly report spitting, verbal abuse and close calls," Mr Sumner said.

"We know the emotional toll from the 'near misses' can be particularly damaging. That's why invested heavily in better equipping the workforce with the skills and knowledge to avoid occupational violence.'

Last year, 400 paramedics went through an initial trial using the BOC tool, which has been successfully utilised in more than 1000 cases.

In coming weeks, all 4800 paramedics and 1300 first responders will undergo training in BOC, a simple to use six-item checklist which can assess the level of risk during a callout for medical assistance.

physical and psychological injuries when she was grabbed by a substance-addicted patient who became aggressive last June. "I have no doubt the BOC tool would have benefitted paramedics to recognise the signs of

AMBULANCE Victoria's (AV) 6000 me greatly had it been available at the

"It may well have prevented the situation from occurring, but importantly, paramedics and First Responders now don't have to rely on a sixth sense or gut instinct.'

AV attends about 33,000 cases with Victoria Police annually, many involving agitated patients affected by drugs, alcohol and or experiencing a mental health crisis.

"As difficult as it is, we can't, and won't turn our backs on patients with mental health issues or those who are affected by drugs and alcohol and this new tool will make it possible for crews to care for these patients more safely.

"We would like to make a BOC score a universal metric to help communicate risk when interacting with other emergency and healthcare services, including hospital emergency departments, police and correctional services," Mr Sumner said.

"For us, caring for the community is why we come to work each day. We appreciate the community continuing to support us in our work and respecting our staff.'

Victoria Ambulance Union's General Secretary Danny Hill said it is a shame that such measures are needed but members are regularly confronted by situations where they experience violence and aggression.

"The union fully supports Paramedic Anita Stirling suffered any measure that reduces risk of occupational violence against paramedics and ambulance workers," Mr Hill said.

"This initiative is designed by potential aggression early and remove themselves from the scene if they identify a risk. They must put their own safety first."

The Alfred's Emergency and Trauma Centre have also adopted a similar BOC tool, called the Broset Violence Checklist, to further boost staff and patient safety.

Emergency and Trauma Centre deputy director Dr Eleanor Junckerstorff said occupational violence has risen over the past few years and the team is always looking at ways to prevent violence occurring.

"This tool complements the excellent supports and strategies we already have in place to manage patients who are in distress and may become aggressive," Dr Junckerstorff said.

Buxton Fire Station funding boost

THE fire station at Buxton is set to receive an upgrade with construction of a detached workshop at the rear of the existing building.

The funding is part of the 2020/2021 grants under the Volunteer Emergency Service Equipment Program. This year's grants involve more than $14 million being provided towards the cost of essential operational equipment, vehicles and appliances, and minor facility improvements across Victoria's volunteer emergency

Under the co-contribution requirements, Buxton Fire Brigade is set to provide around $20,000 towards the overall cost of the works. The brigade has been advocating for a new maintenance area for some years and has applied for VESEP funds over several rounds. "Our goal is to build a stand-alone workshop at the rear of the existing kitchen and office area so maintenance activities can be done away from vehicles and our turnout area," Captain Matt Carlton said.

"The brigade is very grateful to all the local tradesmen who have assisted the brigade put their applications together over the past few years, providing advice on potential solutions and cost estimates. The council and the Catchment Management Authority have been of great assistance in providing advice around overlays and cultural matters. Work done by Mr John Burke, of BAL Assessments, on a pro-bono basis was key in resolving an issue relating to the bushfire overlay at the station and the brigade is particularly appreciative of his efforts. Local community groups also helped with letters of support as did neighbouring brigades and CFA District 12 management," Captain Carlton added.

It is hoped that construction will commence later this year once design and approvals are completed. The workshop will be 6m x 8m clad in Colourbond matching the current station. It will have room to house a vehicle such as the Alexandra Group Field Command Vehicle and provide a safe area for hose and other equipment to be maintained.

Entries now open for Victorian Community History Awards

THE Victorian Community History Awards are held annually to recognise the contributions made by Victorians in the preservation of the state's fascinating history.

Presented by Public Record Office Victoria and the Royal Historical Society of Victoria, the awards celebrate the people involved in community history projects who are dedicated to telling their local stories and help Victorians to better understand their past.

Entries are now open for 2021 across the following categories: Victorian Premier's History Award $5000, Collaborative Community History Project $2000, Local History Project $2000, History Publication $2000, Local History (Small Publication) $1500, Digital Storytelling $1500, Community Diversity $1500, Historical Interpretation $1500, Oral History (presented with Oral History Victoria) $1500, History Article $500.

Past award-winning and commended projects have included local history publications and exhibitions by history groups and museums, sports histories by local clubs and fans, honour boards and displays by RSLs and schools and individual documentary projects, publications, apps and websites by individuals seeking to share the stories of their towns, businesses, and local people.

The 2017 Victorian Premier's History Award winner, John Burch spoke about the importance of the awards to preserve community history.

"Community History is a precious commodity. Across Victoria community organisations are rediscovering and preserving our history, often without any outside assistance," Mr Burch said.

"The Victorian Community History Awards offer these organisations two things, recognition of the importance of what they do and inspiring models of what can be done."

All entries must be received by 5pm Wednesday, July 7. Visit prov.vic.gov.au for details.

COVID-19 settings relaxed and hotel quarantine set to resume

ON Tuesday, March 23, it was announced that Victoria would further relax its COVIDSafe settings, allowing for more visitors in the home, reduced mask wearing and an increase in the number of people allowed in live music venues and other settings.

Acting Premier James Merlino and Minister for Health Martin Foley announced that following reduced exposure risk and low community transmission, new COVIDSafe settings would commence on Friday, March 26.

Masks are no longer be required in retail settings but Victorians will still need to carry one with them at all times and wear it on public transport, in rideshare vehicles and taxis and in sensitive settings such as aged care facilities and hospitals.

Victorians will be able to host up to 100 people in their home per day. Outdoor gatherings in public places such as the beach or the park can have up to 200 people.

Density limits in venues still operating under more restrictive settings, such as casinos, karaoke venues and nightclubs, have moved from one person per four square metres to one person per two square metres. This is in line with cafes, pubs and restaurants.

Additional people are also allowed in indoor non-seated entertainment venues with an increase from 50 per cent to 75 per cent capacity however, the limit of 1000 people per space remains. Dancefloors have the same density limit of the venue and the 50 patron cap has also been removed.

There are no longer limits on class sizes for outdoor and indoor physical recreation or fitness classes, and unstaffed gyms have moved from a density limit of one person per eight square metres to one person per four square metres.

In a boost for the economy, the 75 per cent cap on private and public offices workers has been removed, which coincides with a revised flexible work policy for the Victorian Public Service (VPS).

While all workplaces are still required to ensure people can work from the office in a COVIDSafe way, with a density limit of one person per two square metres, they are no longer required to permit workers to work from home.

In further good news for AFL fans and following a successful first round, crowds are now able to increase to 75 per cent for round two.

On the day of the announcement, Victoria had had 25 days with no new cases and there were no active cases in Victoria. For more information on the new coronavirus settings visit coronavirus.com.au

It was also announced on Thursday, March 25 that there will be a return of international travellers to Victoria from Thursday, April 8. The arrivals cap in Victoria will start at 800 people per week and scale up to 1200, subject to capacity and the completion of ventilation works.

Also on March 25, the government released its response to the final report from the Hotel Quarantine Board of Inquiry and said that they are taking action to implement in full or part each of the 81 recommendations.

Of these recommendations, which include the 69 recommendations from the Interim Report, the government has accepted and already acquitted 49 recommendations, accepted and already acquitted four in part, accepted and will implement eight in full and referred 20 to National Cabinet to ensure a nationally consistent approach.

Following the Board's Interim Report, major changes were made to Victoria's quarantine program, including strengthened leadership, oversight and training, embedded public health and enforcement expertise across the program and additional Infection Prevention and Control measures.

Local SES kept busy on the weekend

ON Saturday, March 27, Alexandra and Mansfield SES were called to search for a boat which had broken down on the previous day in the Big River Inlet on Lake Eildon, between Jerusalem Creek and Goughs Bay.

The two occupants had spent an extra night on a remote part of Lake Eildon when one of their two batteries went flat and the second battery failed. They were well prepared with plenty of food and clothing for their stay, however they had to climb up a steep embankment and 300m up the nearby mountain to obtain mobile phone SES from Mansfield searched for the boat on Friday evening but were unable to locate it.

The Alexandra SES boat crew, launching from Jerusalem Creek, were given a more accurate location on Saturday and despatched the Mansfield SES boat from Goughs Bay. The Alexandra crew located the men at midday, safe and well. The SES crew were able to start the boat and escorted them back to Jerusalem Creek.

Marysville and Alexandra SES were also called to an incident where a woman fell a short distance and seriously injured herself around 11.15am on Sunday, March 28. Ambulance paramedics from Alexandra attended Sugarloaf Saddle and called for SES to assist at a location near Wells Cave.

The HEMS Ambulance Helicopter winched a paramedic into the incident scene and, along with ground crews, attended to her injuries. She was then winched out into the HEMS and transported to a Melbourne hospital.

Fortunately, those hiking with the injured woman had first aid experience, and a doctor happened to be nearby and was able to provide immediate assistance until emergency crews arrived. The HEMS team saved the SES and ambulance members from a difficult carry down the rocky mountain track.

Palm Sunday Rally in Alexandra

A PALM Sunday Rally was held at the St John's Anglican Church on Downey Street in Alexandra on Sunday, March

The Palm Sunday Peace Rally has been a part of the Australian landscape for many years. This year, the focus shifted from 'Peace in the World' to refugees. The theme of the rally was 'Justice and a fair go for refugees'.

Over the last two decade at least, Australia's refugee policy has meant that many genuine refugees have been locked up indefinitely in detention in far flung places, or in harsh conditions in capital cities.

Recently, many refugees have been removed from community detention and left to fend for themselves, without accommodation, income or support. The community, through refugee support groups, has been left to find food, accommodation and a refugee, and an acceptance work for them.

This Amnesty year International has thrown its weight behind the campaign for improving the conditions of refugees and asylum seekers.

Supporters of the rally are asking for an end to long term off shore or local detention of asylum seekers, an abolition of Temporary Protection Visas and access to Australian support mechanisms once a person has been recognised as of New Zealand's offer to take 150 refugees per year.

Rural Australians Refugees, including the branch in Alexandra, together with St John's Anglican Church held an event to mark this campaign. They unfurled a banner sponsored by St John's congregation to heighten Alexandra's awareness of the cruel treatment of genuine refugees.

Mother's Day brunch for bowel cancer prevention

THE Jodi Lee Foundation have by bowel cancer and particularly launched a new initiative for Mother's Day, a way to celebrate the mum at the table and the mum in our hearts.

The Jodi Lee Foundation encourages Australians to participate in this fundraiser by either hosting a Mother's Day brunch in the month of May at home or celebrating at your local eatery with your family and friends and collecting donations to support women who are diagnosed with bowel cancer.

It's a special way to honour mothers who have been impacted those who have lost their lives to the disease, which is the second most common cause of cancerrelated deaths in Australia.

Funds raised will assist the Jodi Lee Foundation continue to spread awareness about bowel cancer prevention and to deliver other services to the community, such as their Workplace Program and online symptom checker.

Hosts who raise over $300 for the foundation with their Jodi Lee Foundation Mother's Day Brunch will go in the draw to win a beautiful diamond pendant from Mazzucchelli's valued at bowel cancers can be successfully $1129. The pendant is part of the 'Every Child is a Diamond' collection where the movement of the diamond in the middle of the pendant is designed to represent the heartbeat of each child.

More than 15,000 people are diagnosed with bowel cancer each year. The Jodi Lee Foundation educates the community about the importance of screening from age 50, acting quickly on symptoms and living a healthy lifestyle for the prevention and early detection of bowel cancer, because if detected early, over 99 per cent of treated.

For Jodi Lee Foundation Community Engagement Manager, Samantha Herbut, this cause is extremely close to her

"Since my mum's passing, I always find this time difficult, especially given it is also a few days before her birthday. By being a part of this initiative and raising awareness, it helps to heal old wounds and take time to honour my mum. It makes me feel like I am doing something I know she would be proud of," she said.

The foundation is hoping that the Jodi Lee Foundation Mother's Day Brunch also raises awareness around ways people can prevent bowel cancer; being healthy and active, taking a screening test, acting on symptoms and also exploring your family history.

If there is a history of bowel cancer in your family, you may be at increased risk. Regardless of your age, consult your GP to understand your risk and discuss bowel screening methods best suited to your situation.

VICTORIA'S building and construction industry is currently enjoying a huge boom in activity thanks to the introduction of the HomeBuilder grant scheme, but according to Master Builders Victoria (MBV), that boom is creating significant supply chain issues which are threatening the scheme's undeniable success.

According to MBV CEO, Rebecca Casson almost 80 per cent of Victorian building and construction businesses are currently experiencing significant delays in being able to secure concreters, joiners and bricklayers.

"HomeBuilder has been a lifeline for Victorian home builders and is continuing to drive a forward pipeline of work but some of them are now struggling to keep up with demand for skilled tradespeople and some critical building materials," she said.

"In collaboration with our state and national colleagues, we're currently working with the Federal Government on potential solutions to relieve the pressure on the supply chain and ensure that the benefits of HomeBuilder are maximised."

"We want to avoid a situation where delays in the availability of key tradespeople and key materials, along with escalating costs for both, threaten to undermine HomeBuilder's widely acknowledged success."

The HomeBuilder grant scheme was introduced in June 2020 and provides eligible home owner-occupiers (including first home buyers) with a grant to build a new home or substantially renovate an existing home.

It was developed to activate and bring forward demand to avoid a forecast 'valley of death" for the home building sector at the height of the COVID-19 crisis in 2020 and has stopped thousands of mostly small building and construction businesses from going under and saved thousands of jobs.

Ms Casson said Master Builders had just conducted a national survey of its members to determine the extent of the evolving supply chain problem.

"What we found was that nationally 78 per cent of respondents reported experiencing delays of up to three weeks, along with an up to 10 per cent increase in the cost of materials and specialist trades and labour," she said.

Ms Casson said the high demand right across the country is exacerbating the challenge for Victorian home builders along with a global shortage of products like timber and steel, and a lack of building product reserves are combining to cause potentially significant delays in the construction of homes and significant price increases.

According to Ms Casson, the Victorian building and construction industry is reporting that 69 per cent are experiencing trade delays; there is an average delay of 15 days for concreters, bricklayers, and joiners; eight per cent of businesses are experiencing trade delays of more than two weeks; and four per cent are experiencing trade costs increases for concreters, structural steel workers and carpenters.

For Ballarat based business Stuart Allen Building, the negative financial impact of supply chain issues has been a significant challenge.

According to Director Stuart Allen, he hasn't seen anything like it in 20 years of being in business.

"Prices are up, we're struggling to get some trades and we're trying to keep clients happy who just want to see their jobs happening and completed," he said.

"We're trying to build a buffer into our contracts but it's a bit hard when you don't know what materials and labour are likely to cost, or for how long."

"HomeBuilder has been a huge success, but unless a solution can be found to these supply chain issues and increased costs, an unintended consequence could be negative cash flow impacts for local home building businesses, resulting in the risk of small business insolvencies and people missing out on their HomeBuilder grants," Ms Casson said.

Avoid holiday heartbreak this Easter long weekend

THE Victorian Government is encouraging Victorians to holiday locally and do their research when booking travel and accommodation over the Easter break.

The warning comes after Consumer Affairs Victoria received more than 4500 queries and complaints related to travel services and holiday accommodation during 2019/2020.

Minister for Consumer Affairs, Gaming and Liquor Regulation Melissa Horne said that it's important for all Victorians to research their holidays thoroughly before handing over any personal details, including credit card details.

"It's understandable that Victorians are eager to book trips away with family and friends in the lead up to Easter, but it's important to do your research before handing over your credit card details," Ms Horne said.

"Consumer Affairs Victoria has done an amazing job helping Victorians with advice on travel and accommodation throughout the pandemic, but it's up to everyone to take the time to understand exactly what they're paying for when booking trips away."

"The advice is simple, read the reviews, check websites to see what other travellers have to say, and always check the company's cancellation policy.'

A consumer named Emma purchased what she thought was a 'two-for-one' deal on a cruise in late 2019, only to find she had actually paid for a voucher that could only be put towards a cruise if she paid additional Emma had to go through a solicitor to get her funds back and is hoping her situation can be used to warn others of the importance of reading the fine print and terms and conditions.

Avoid being disappointed when booking travel and accommodation by researching the accommodation or travel provider by reading reviews and comments on travel websites and blogs.

Book with a business whose website displays clear information regarding booking cancellations, so you know the process if something does go wrong.

If possible, pay by credit card, or debit card using the 'credit' function. If consumers do not get what they paid for, they may be able to seek a chargeback from their bank.

Take out travel insurance to offer extra protection should you need to change or alter your booking due to an unforeseen circumstance, such as injury or illness.

Travel businesses should take care to make sure their promotional material is accurate, their terms and conditions are clear, and inform consumers of any increase in costs or changes as soon as possible.

Further information on how to protect yourself when booking travel and accommodation can be found at consumer. vic.gov.au/products-and-services/problemwith-a-service/booking-travel

Grants to support volunteers in Indi

HELEN Haines has announced thousands of volunteer hours that $132,000 is available to support volunteer groups in Indi as part of the 2021 Volunteer Grants program.

The Independent Member for Indi is calling for eligible, community not-for-profit organisations in Indi to submit their expressions of interest before Monday, April 19.

Volunteer Grants of $1000 to $5000 will help volunteers and volunteer groups to buy small equipment for volunteers, by reimbursing volunteer fuel, transport or training costs, or support promotional activities.

Last year, the volunteer grants funded 18 projects in Indi worth $63,000 including sporting clubs, Landcare groups and health organisations.

Dr Haines said that volunteers were the backbone of the community through a hard 18 months.

"During the bushfires, whenever I visited a recovery centre in Corryong or Walwa or Wangaratta, I was always greeted by volunteers. None of those recovery efforts would have happened without committed," she said.

"Through the pandemic, volunteers came out of woodwork whenever people needed a feed, or social interaction, or a hand in getting groceries or medicines. It's great to be able to give something back to those volunteer organisations".

In order to receive funding, organisations must have been nominated by their Federal Member of Parliament and meet the eligibility criteria.

Each Member is able to nominate organisations to apply for funding in their electorate. The Department of Social Services will then send an application form to nominated organisations to apply for funding in May

Successful applicants will be announced in November

To lodge an expression of interest, visit helenhaines. org/resources/grants submit a completed form by Monday, April 19 by sending it to helen.haines.mp@aph. gov.au

GPs active in vax roll out

MORE than 1000 general get the AstraZeneca vaccine practices will begin administering vaccines to patients as part of phase 1b of the COVID-19 vaccine program.

The program is set to scale up in coming weeks to include more than 4500 accredited general practices across Australia.

Phase 1b targets more vulnerable patients, including older people, some healthcare workers, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people over the age of 55, younger adults with an underlying medical condition including those with disability and critical and high-risk workers including defence, police, fire, emergency services and meat processors.

College General of Practitioners President Dr Price said that general practice will play a key role in the vaccine rollout.

"Today is a huge step forward in the fight against the COVID-19 pandemic. I am one of many GPs participating in this pivotal phase of the vaccine rollout, which is protecting some of the most vulnerable people in our community," Dr Price said.

"I know all GPs would want to be able to vaccinate their patients. This is what we do. Most Australians will and many will want to be vaccinated by their usual GP, if they can. That makes sense because most Australians go to their GP for their other vaccinations and many will do just that for their COVID-19 vaccine.

"There are GPs living and working in communities in every corner of Australia and that includes small towns and remote Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities. We are connected to our communities. We know our patients and they trust us.

"GPs are perfectly placed to increase vaccine confidence and uptake. This is especially true for GPs who engage with culturally and linguistically diverse communities and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples.

"For any patients who are feeling anxious I remind them that everyone in phase 1b who wants to be vaccinated will be vaccinated, you will not miss

"I am immensely proud of all general practices taking part in this vaccine roll-out. You are part of a massive public health effort and in time we will be recognised for the incredible work we are undertaking to vaccinate vulnerable populations and keep them safe."

Classifieds River frontage licence holders, you must have your say

MEMBER for Eildon Cindy McLeish is urging river frontage licence holders to comment on the recently proposed regulations to camp on licensed water frontages. This comes after landowners were put to the bottom of the list during the Victorian Government consultation process.

Consultation via the Engage Victoria website is open now and it is imperative people comment on the proposed regulations.

Ms McLeish says it is disappointing that the Victorian Government has not taken the opinion of river frontage licence holders into higher consideration. It was a missed opportunity to learn from landowner's knowledge and experience before drafting the proposed regulations.

Ms McLeish said, "10,000 farming families did not have a say when the change was made to allow campers on licenced river frontages. Now, it almost seems too late for the state government to learn from their expertise as the regulations are already drafted.

"I have had river frontage licence holders, Landcare groups and farmers contact me, expressing their distress about the increased risk campers can cause to biosecurity and biological controls. There is also concern about fires left burning, pollution to water supply with human waste and environmental damage.'

Victorian Farmers Federation (VFF) have shared similar concerns about the proposed regulations and fear that landowners have been forgotten by the state government.

Some of the proposed regulations have raised concern. These include campers being allowed to set up 100 metres away from a family home for 28 days. There are questions around the budget for camping location signage, enforcement staff and maintenance of designated portable toilets.

"I hope the state government listens to landowners, licence holders and Landcare groups very serious concerns now. But I'm not holding my breath," Ms McLeish said.

Land regulation consultation closes on April 19, with the official changes coming into effect from September 1.

Reforms to making renting fairer

RENTERS across Victoria are embracing more than 130 reforms now in place thanks to the Victorian Government's reforms to make renting fairer and safer for all Victorians.

Minister for Consumer Affairs, Gaming and Liquor Regulation Melissa Horne joined renter Heidi at her home in Brunswick to talk about the positive impact the rental reforms have already had for so many Victorians.

"These reforms are about giving renters the right to safe, secure and affordable accommodation, while ensuring rental providers can continue to manage their properties effectively," she said.

"We're delivering on our promise to make renting fair for all Victorians, whether you're a renter or a rental provider, the new laws will make a positive difference to how we view renting in Victoria.'

Since March 2020, renters have been able to keep pets after asking their rental provider. For renters like Heidi, this small change has contributed to making their house feel more like Heidi's rescue cat Bentley and bearded dragon Larry proved to be fantastic companions during the coronavirus lockdown.

Victorians will now also benefit from even more rent rule changes, such as: the Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal will only be able to issue possession orders requiring a renter to vacate if it is reasonable and proportionate to do so; a continuation of one of the important coronavirus emergency measures rental providers will need to give a valid reason to end rental agreements. They will not be able to give 'no specified reason' notices to vacate, and a new process for repeated late or non-payments of rent, which will ensure renters in financial distress can only be required to leave when they have paid late when it is fair to require them to do so while giving rental providers more certainty.

Rental providers will also see the benefit of these new laws with stronger accountability for renters, clearer obligations and modern regulation and processes.

The rent reforms affect private rentals, caravan parks, rooming houses and residential parks. More information on the rental reforms can be found at consumer.vic.gov.au/rentrules

Supporting families with special needs children

By Tricia Mifsud

ACCORDING to the Australian Bureau of Statistics Survey of Disability, Ageing and Carers, 7.4 per cent of Australian children in 2015 had some level of disability and four per cent had a severe or profound level of disability.

With these percentages equating to approximately 519,000 Australian children, the question can be asked what support is there available for families with children who have special needs.

More importantly, why is there little community discussion about it?

CEO of Inspired Carers Liz Callaghan said that there needs to be more conversation within the community regarding how parents and guardians can be supported as they raise their children with special needs.

"These things [how to support special needs children are the things that people don't even think of speaking about when given the oportunity to voice their opinions on important matters," she said.

"The only way that change will happen is if awareness grows."

The changes that Liz refers to isn't just about the number of support groups available, or having someone to talk to. Supporting families with special needs children refers to also accessibility of resources, whether that be a playground that is all userfriendly, all the way to the medical services available close to the family.

"Families have to move a long way to enable their child access to services which suggests there aren't services available where they live. That's a big deal, to pack up your family and move for one child," Liz said.

Contributing to the lack of resources is the need for more funding. However, without discussion in the community about needed more accessibility, funding simply will not be allocated.

For Murrindindi shire residents, Liz says that opportunities like the council's Shaping our Future initiative is the perfect place to voice concerns about issues such as this.

"Consultations are happening at the moment in council around the Shaping our Future. These are the things that should be spoken about but are often forgotten about. It therefore does not then become addressed in future

Further lacking in the discussion of families with special needs children is that research and data collection often neglects studies comparing opportunities for able children and children who require more care.

This makes it extremely difficult for organisations like Inspired Carers to target areas where they can provide extra assistance for the families they

In the meantime, the best thing families who need support can do is to reach out. The more they do, the more apparent it becomes that more help needs to be provided to these families.

Liz acknowledged that it can be tough for someone to ask for help but assures that families will reap the benefits when they take the first step.

"To ask for help is difficult, it makes you look vulnerable," Liz said.

"I am always more than happy to reach out to families, but they need to be willing to take that first step and admit that they need some help.

"The help received is tailored to your needs, and how comfortable you are. Sometimes, I may never meet a parent or guardian face-to-face because they prefer phone conversations and that's completely okay."

If your family or a family you know would like to find out more about Inspired Carers, visit their Facebook
