100 DAYS OF SCHOOL

Smiles and excitement from Prep students at Kinglake Primary School celebrating the first 100 days of their school journey, learning, growing, and making wonderful memories together. The day was filled with fun and engaging activities centred around the number 100. Students dressed up in bright clothing in celebration. The children created colourful art projects and participating in games that highlighting how much they have learned since their very first day of school. Prep teacher Mrs Hocking feels incredibly proud of how far each student has come, building confidence, developing new friendships, learning to read and write, exploring numbers, and embracing new challenges. Stage drill success

A STAGE collapse scenario, titled Exercise Indiana, replicating a real-world incident in Seymour last Thursday night has been deemed a success with hundreds of emergency personnel able to put their training into practice.

More than 200 personnel from CFA, VICSES, Victoria Police, Ambulance Victoria, Mitchell Shire Council, Department of Defence, and La Trobe University came together to take part in the large-scale emergency management exercise. Local brigades that took part in the exercise included Trawool, Strath Creek and Yea CFA.

Local brigades take part in stage collapse simulation training

The training exercise simulated a festival stage collapse caused by a structural failure creating a mass-casualty scenario that required a coordinated emergency services response.

Event organiser and Captain of Trawool Fire Brigade, Sean Kerris, said the exercise was a great opportunity to practice their training in a structured environment.

“The scenario was developed using lessons learned from real-world incidents, including the Indiana State Fair stage collapse in the United States, helping to create a realistic and challenging environment for participating agencies,” Sean said.

“Throughout the exercise, participants worked through a range of emergency management functions including incident control, rescue operations, casualty management, communications, resource coordination and inter-agency decision-making.”

CFA Chief Officer Jason Heffernan AFSM said exercises similar to this play a critical role in ensuring emergency services remain prepared for complex incidents.

“While major stage collapse incidents are rare, they remain a recognised risk wherever large crowds gather. Training together in realistic scenarios strengthens our ability to respond effectively and coordinate resources when communities need us most,” Jason said.

VICSES Operations Manager North East, Scott Ritcher, said the exercise highlighted the value of collaboration between services to strengthen local emergency response.

“Our volunteers go above and beyond to ensure they are prepared and ready to support their community in times of emergency,” Scott said.

“By taking part in realistic, large-scale training initiatives such as these, our volunteers can bolster their emergency response skillset and build important cohesiveness with their fellow first responders.”

Goulburn Murray Solar Savers offers upgrade options

GOULBURN Murray Solar Savers includes a range of technologies to help households and businesses manage energy use and reduce running costs over time.

Available options include solar panels, battery storage, heat pump hot water systems, reverse-cycle heating and cooling, EV chargers, induction cooktops, insulation, draught proofing, and home energy assessments.

These technologies can support more efficient energy use. For example, solar panels generate electricity on-site, batteries allow stored energy to be used later, electric appliances such as heat pumps and induction cooktops typically use less energy than older systems, and insulation and draught proofing help maintain indoor temperatures.

A range of government rebates and incentives may be available to help reduce upfront costs. These include the Federal Small-scale Renewable Energy Scheme, Solar Victoria rebates and interest-free loans, and the Victorian Energy Upgrades program. Eligibility depends on individual circumstances.

The program can help participants understand which options and incentives may apply.

Alexandra SES receives new rescue truck

ALEXANDRA SES volunteers have received a welcome boost to their rescue capability, adding a first-of-its-kind medium rescue truck (MRT) to their vehicle bay to greatly improve members' ability to navigate their diverse response area.

The state-of-the-art truck, which is the first of the VICSES MRT fleet to be fitted with an Allison Automatic Transmission, is specially designed to increase performance across steep and challenging terrain such as in the Black Range State Forest and when responding alongside neighbouring units in the Cathedral Range State Park.

The vehicle was funded by VICSES as part of the organisation's commitment to improving performance and drivability for volunteers across the state, with VICSES the first Australasian Fire Authorities Council (AFAC) member agency to implement the uprated transmission modification in this model of vehicle.

VICSES Alexandra Unit's brand-new vehicle underwent rigorous testing as part of VICSES' Drive Days event at Creswick earlier this year, when volunteers carried out side-by-side comparisons with regular MRT models to better understand improvements in the vehicle's performance.

VICSES Alexandra Unit's existing 2016 MRT will be repurposed to strengthen capability elsewhere in the VICSES fleet later this year. Local members are now training and familiarising themselves with their brand-new MRT before it officially becomes their primary rescue appliance in the coming weeks.

While the vehicle will allow more efficient travel throughout the region, the new MRT also comes equipped with a suite of state-of-the-art Holmatro Pentheon hydraulic equipment to bolster the unit's ability to provide life-saving road crash rescue (RCR) response in Alexandra and surrounding communities.

The handheld, battery-powered cutters and spreaders no longer require members to tether the equipment to a vehicle power source, allowing for greater manoeuvrability and improved ability to access and retrieve entrapped patients.

The Pentheon suite is widely used across VICSES' RCR fleet, with 104 RCR-accredited units across the state called to more than 2500 RCR incidents in 2025/26.

It marked the fourth consecutive yearly increase in RCR-related incidents for VICSES and signified the service's busiest road crash rescue year on record.

The vehicle upgrade follows a busy year for VICSES Alexandra Unit volunteers, who were called to more than 170 incidents in 2025-26, including almost 100 for storm and nearly 20 relating to road incidents.

To find out more about volunteering with VICSES, visit ses.vic.gov.au/join-us

Chris Brockwell, VICSES Assistant Chief Officer, Asset Capability Advisor said, "VICSES Alexandra Unit's uprated MRT is an exciting first for VICSES and an important addition to the unit's emergency response capacity.

"With the state-of-the-art equipment they need, members will be better able to provide timely and efficient response in all corners of their community and save lives in the process."

Alexandra SES Unit Controller Trevor Evans said, "unit members are looking forward to using the new rescue truck and Pentheon equipment and putting them through their paces."

THUMBS UP

I would like to thank all the wonderful staff at Reddrops, when I had a low moment while shopping there. They were really magnificent. Shop locally.

THUMBS DOWN

Talk about kicking someone when they are down. Someone stole our concrete garden seats, bird baths and concrete pot from our property in Yarck between mid June and July 6. We would appreciate their return asap. Not only are they sentimental to us, we've lost everything else, but now, we and the wonderful people working on our property which was burnt out in the January fires, have no place to take a break and sit. It would have taken two people to lift the seats. If these people have a conscience, you'll return them if you have a heart.

THUMBS UP

I'd like to thank everyone for the help they have given us when the fires were on, and Murrindindi Shire Council too. G and D Lashford, Cathkin.

Can anyone enlighten me what is going on with our mail? I sent a letter posted to PO Box number in the main street and it took six weeks to travel six foot across the footpath.

Inquiry seeks major bushfire overhaul

THE Legislative Council Environment and Planning Committee report, The 2026 summer fires across Victoria, was tabled in the Victorian Parliament on Tuesday, July 28. The report was the result of the inquiry held into the 2026 bushfires, including the Longwood fire, with submissions, public hearings, open mic sessions and site visits held across the fire impacted areas.

No official cause of the Longwood Fire has been announced yet. It is still under investigation by Victoria Police, almost seven months later.

Chair Michael Galea stated in the foreword, “More than 440,000 hectares of land were burnt, an area larger than that affected by the Black Saturday fires of 2009. 451 homes were destroyed, a further 1110 outbuildings lost, and businesses were severely affected. It is estimated that more than 45,000 livestock deaths were recorded, as well as an incalculable loss of wildlife. Tragically, one individual, Maxwell Hobson, lost his life... Victoria entered the 2026 fire season with a clear understanding of the heightened risks in conditions. Catastrophic conditions on January 9 saw the creation or major expansion of numerous fires. Fire agencies and communities were overall well-prepared, and through a combination of the tireless work of agencies, firefighters and communities, the response was strong and saved many lives. Considering the conditions, it is remarkable that we did not see mass fatalities as was seen in 2009.”

Victorian Farmers Federation (VFF) President Ryan said, “The VFF has been calling for practical reforms for years, including better management of public land fuel loads and stronger support for the CFA that properly recognises the impact of bushfires on farm businesses. Many of those recommendations have already been recognised through previous bushfire reviews. We don't need another report, we need governments to start delivering and they can start doing that today.”

The recent Inquiry's report held 80 recommendations.

Combined agencies
The first recommendation seeks a review of the roles and relationships of Emergency Management Victoria (EMV), the Country Fire Authority (CFA), Fire Rescue Victoria (FRV) and Forest Fire Management Victoria (FFMV), to improve accountability, reduce complexity and strengthen frontline operational leadership. It was asked that there be an evaluation of the secondment arrangements and advise how they could be strengthened.

CFA
The report recommends that the Victorian Government support CFA to develop and fund a volunteer firefighter recruitment and retention strategy, as well as a review into declining volunteer numbers, and the establishment of CFA specialist firefighting teams.

They should also “commit to the accelerated replacement of all CFA singlecab frontline firefighting tankers and fund a fleet renewal program that removes these vehicles from operational service within five years.” Furthermore, they recommended that the CFA establish a public database to monitor fleet status, including vehicle class, age and operability.

Local knowledge
CFA, FRV and FFMV should develop a policy framework for incorporating local knowledge into their preparation and response capabilities, including private units and applicable machinery, and provide support to holders of private units. In addition, there should be a review into ways in which local knowledge can be better integrated into incident management teams.

Water access
The government should also provide ongoing funding for strategically located bulk water tankers and continue to invest in innovative firefighting appliances, including ultraheavy tankers, and establish a dedicated rural firefighting water infrastructure fund to support the installation, upgrade and maintenance of strategic water tanks and other water storage assets in high bushfire-risk areas.

There should be collaboration between emergency agencies to standardise access to bulk water across the state, and that all firefighting appliances be fitted with standard adapter kits. Static water points should be signed and tested before each season, including private tanks where the owner consents.

Mitigating risk
The Victorian Government should ensure fire agencies undertake an urgent sciencebased appraisal of areas with extreme fuel risk prior to funding and implementing works ahead of the next summer.

A further recommendation is that the Department of Transport and Planning (DTP) create an in-season escalation process for councils and brigades to request urgent roadside works following substantial rain and grass regrowth events that increase fire risk or block access.

Legislation should be amended to provide the CFA with clearer authority to enforce roadside vegetation management, investigate bushfire hazard complaints, issue and enforce fuel management notices and require remediation by public land managers, particularly around critical infrastructure, and that the Victorian Government ensure that roadside vegetation management can demonstrate clear risk reduction for community infrastructure and emergency response, while limiting ecological harm.

There should also be minimum maintenance standards regarding vegetation management on roadsides, and consideration of permitting landholders to undertake approved fuel reduction activities on nearby roadsides, where appropriate.

The Victorian Government should increase support for CFA and EMV locally-delivered facetoface bushfire preparedness initiatives with measurable outcomes.

The Inspector-General of Emergency Management should review wire rope safety barriers and other roadside safety infrastructure to ensure they do not impede bushfire prevention, response or recovery activities.

EMV should also publish annual regional readiness statements before each fire season.

Messaging
Improved messaging about bushfire risks is sought, along with the appropriate actions to take in preparation, and an improvement in warning literacy and decision-making. There should also be improved education for the community about bushfire places of last resort, and enhanced messaging on how to make properties less fireprone and what to do in fire situations.

Technology
The government should prioritise the delivery of reliable power supply and telecommunications resilience in bushfire-prone communities, and should actively consider how emerging fire detection technologies, including AI-enabled cameras and remotely piloted aircraft systems, can augment Victoria's existing bushfire preparedness measures.

It was suggested that there be an education campaign in communities with high fire risk around what information sources are available in emergency situations where power and communications are lost.

It was recommended that EMV prioritise updates to enhance the VicEmergency app for useability and accessibility, with better quality of messaging.

In addition, there should be a review of the CFA's radio communications suitability and compatibility with other fire services radios.

There should be continued funding to the CFA for the Elevated Seasonal Response Initiative.

Relief centres and recovery
It was recommended that the Victorian Government work with councils to facilitate stronger understanding of the funding arrangements for the establishment and operation of emergency relief centres. This should include an evaluation of certain upfront relief costs to assist smaller councils. Additionally, the government should investigate ways to more adequately support a community-enabled response, including upfront funding to community hubs for essential provisions, rather than reimbursements.

There should be a review and evaluate the support packages offered to communities during relief and recovery stages of emergencies, focusing on community needs, and ensuring equitable access for all fire-affected communities including those who stayed to defend. Clearly defined eligibility criteria should be provided to assist with reducing challenges with claim resolution, and measures by which emergency relief payments could be made immediately after residents are asked to evacuate.

DRAWING LESSONS: AMONG ITS 80 RECOMMENDATIONS, THE BUSHFIRE INQUIRY CALLED FOR FASTER CLEAN UP PROGRAMS, IMPROVED RECOVERY SUPPORT AND STRONGER COMMUNITY RESILIENCE MEASURES FOR FIRE AFFECTED RESIDENTS. PHOTO: ANDY WILSON

The report also seeks a review into the eligibility methodology for disaster relief payments at both state and Commonwealth levels.

In addition, the report recommends the prioritisation of the delivery of temporary modular housing for homeless residents whose homes were significantly damaged or destroyed by the fires, and ensure sufficient temporary accommodation remains available until permanent housing is completed, enabling people to remain close to their properties and communities. There should also be faster planning and building approvals, and Emergency Services Volunteer Fund (ESVF) for bushfire-affected property owners with councils supported to provide rate relief, and improvement in insurance affordability in fireprone communities.

Early recovery funding allocations should be reviewed and adjusted as damage assessment and recovery needs become clearer, and there should be an impact-based recovery funding model for major bushfires, with allocations based on scale and type of loss.

Government fire spending

The report asks that the Victorian Government publish regular, publicly accessible reports detailing bushfire recovery expenditure, project delivery, funding allocations and outcomes.

Community hubs

It was recommended that the Victorian Government establish a rapid case management deployment system or provide case-management training to community hub leaders, and that a community recovery hub model be established for natural disasters. A lack of information sharing between the Victorian Government, local councils and community organisations caused many challenges and it was recommended that this be addressed.

Mental health

It was recommended that the Victorian Government establish a dedicated program for improving baseline mental health service capacity in rural and regional areas, and ensure that recovery case management assistance integrates psychosocial support with practical recovery issues. In addition, the government should develop a longterm psychosocial recovery plan for communities affected by repeat disasters.

Clean up

The Victorian Government should establish a default cleanup model for major bushfires to ensure that properties are cleaned up quickly and residents are not exposed to hazardous material. Cleanup support should not be dependent on insurance status, with support provided while insurance claims are being processed. Clear and up-to-date eligibility rules, underinsurance definitions and referral pathways for clean up support should be published within two weeks of a major bushfire.

Waste levy

It was recommended that the Victorian Government ensure waste levy waivers and gate fee rebates remain in place until the end of 2026.

Road access

A permit system was recommended to authorise landholders to access roads closed by disasters where certain conditions are met. This could be expanded to authorise landholders to gain access for essential agricultural purposes, and access for accredited wildlife rescuers.

Primary producers

Assessments of productive loss of primary producers, not purely residential damage, should be factored in when designing recovery support for agricultural businesses, and the Department of Energy Environment and Climate Action (DEECA) should establish a single accountable pathway for landholders seeking fencing repairs that involve public or Crown land. Ways by which local veterinarians and registered firearms owners can access impacted properties to support farmers and assist with livestock euthanasia should be explored.

Business recovery and tourism

It was recommended that the Victorian Government establish targeted business recovery grants to support businesses affected by the 2026 summer fires, and that Visit Victoria, promote initiatives to support regional tourism and events in bushfire affected areas, and restore visitor confidence.

Natural environment

Environmental recovery in bushfire affected regions including rehabilitation of native vegetation, erosion control, pest and weed management, biodiversity restoration and catchment recovery should be prioritised, as well as DEECA reviewing postfire wildlife response arrangements, including the deployment of trained wildlife volunteers, veterinarians and wildlife organisations.

Ongoing work to repair fire-impacted road network

SIGNIFICANT work is continuing to repair and reopen Murrindindi Shire's fire-affected road network.

Council has assessed 451 kilometres of council-managed roads in the fire impacted area, with 405 kilometres requiring works of varying scale.

Assessing and treating hazardous trees across the affected network was the first step in restoring safe public access. Further works range from significant repairs to road surfaces and infrastructure, through to the replacement of signs and guideposts.

164 kilometres of roads require repairs to road surfaces and infrastructure, while a further 242 kilometres require replacement signs and guideposts. Of the 132 impacted roads, 62 have reopened to the public. Many remaining closures continue, allowing authorised access for residents, clean-up crews and primary producers, where safe.

Council has completed inspections of 84 road bridges, with 55 found to be impacted and nine requiring full replacement or significant repairs.

On the Great Victorian Rail Trail, 27 bridges have been inspected, with 15 impacted and three requiring full replacement. Temporary access arrangements have been established where required.

Fire-affected roads can remain unpredictable due to damaged surfaces, subsequent heavy rainfall, missing guideposts, barriers, signage and line marking, as well as culverts, drainage and fencing. Some culverts have collapsed, or remain at risk of collapse, making conditions especially dangerous after dark.

Drivers are urged to slow down and drive to the conditions, obey speed restrictions and remain alert for livestock and wildlife where fencing has been damaged.

Mayor Damien Gallagher, said "Reopening 62 roads is an important step forward, but more than 400 kilometres of our road network still requires works, alongside significant damage to bridges and other critical infrastructure. Our crews and contractors are working hard to restore safe access, but recovery on this scale takes considerable time, resources, and investment.

"Council cannot deliver a recovery effort of this magnitude alone. Continued partnership and investment from the Victorian and Australian Governments will be critical to restoring our infrastructure and supporting the long-term recovery of our communities.

"In the meantime, we ask everyone travelling through fire-affected areas to take extra care, check current road conditions before setting out and follow all road closures and restrictions", Cr Gallagher said.

Check VicTraffic and council's website for current road access information rather than relying on Google Maps. Heavy vehicles must continue to apply for permits before travelling on affected roads. For more information, visit www.murrindindi.vic.gov.au/fireimpactedroads

The full story on the outdoors vote

ALL major parties contesting the upcoming Victorian election have made promises about how they will treat hunting and the outdoors if elected. Victoria has 56,965 licenced hunters and 245,147 anglers, meaning that the campaign for the outdoors holds significant sway.

This is particularly relevant in the Eildon electorate, where there are 1217 game licence holders according to statistics from the Game Management Authority (GMA). Lake Eildon also provides numerous opportunities for anglers, while the state forests offer public land hunting.

During their term, the Victorian Labor government refused to ban duck season, kept some 300,000 hectares of the Central Highlands state forest from being turned into a new Great Forest National Park, appointed dedicated ministers for outdoor recreation and set aside $36 million from registration and marine licence fees for a fund to upgrade boat ramps and remove parking fees.

The Coalition has matched Labor's outdoors portfolio, with spokeswoman Melina Bath promising that duck season would remain if they formed government. They also vowed to increase the Victorian fisheries enforcement team, after cuts last year to the number of Victorian Fisheries Authority (VFA) enforcement officers by the Labor government.

One Nation Victoria President Warren Pickering said that they would also keep duck season if elected and keep access to public land for hunting, fishing, four-wheel driving and trail bike riding. They also vowed to increase Victorian fisheries enforcement.

Meanwhile seven hunting and shooting groups across Victoria, including Sporting Shooters' Association of Australia (SSAA), Field and Game Australia, Australian Deer Association, Victorian Amateur Pistol Association, Victorian Hound Hunters, Gippsland Deerstalkers and Bowhunters Association, have released their list of election priorities.

The 2026-2030 Shooting and Hunting in Victoria election priorities state that whoever wins the state election will set up a $9.7 million Game Management Action Plan to guide a sustainable hunting policy from July 2027; reinvest hunting licence revenue into a trust account to boost game management, research, infrastructure and education; allocate $700,000 to a three-year Hunters for the Hungry pilot project to support field operations, processing and volunteer training to channel wild game meat through established food relief networks to Victorians experiencing food insecurity; pilot licensed hound hunting access in selected national parks; develop a hunting tourism strategy for Victoria; and over four years allocate $12 million for target sports facility upgrades, $4 million for public land partnership grants to upgrade hunting facilities, habitat restoration and signage, and $3 million to promote responsible game management and hunting.

Rikkie-Lee Tyrrell endorsed for Northern Victoria

RIKKIE-LEE Tyrrell will lead One Nation's ticket for the Northern Victoria region at the 2026 Victorian state election in November.

Ms Tyrrell broke ground in 2022 as the first One Nation MP ever elected to the Victorian parliament and has been a strong voice for an end to the neglect of regional areas by the Andrews, Allan and Carroll Labor governments.

A former farmer and emergency services volunteer, Ms Tyrrell has also worked in the hospitality, tourism and real estate sectors.

She's a mother with two children. Ms Tyrrell has been a strong advocate for Northern Victoria and regional communities across the state, highlighting in particular the Labor government's appalling and dangerous neglect of the regional road network. She has advocated for reductions in red tape for the state's irrigators, and for the expansion of drought assistance provided to farmers.

Ms Tyrrell also moved to criminalise desecration of the Australian and Victorian flags, and has advocated for implementing recommendations for IBAC and the state Ombudsman to improve government accountability.

She has also spoken strongly against the divisive 'Respectful

Relationships' program rolled out in Victorian schools.

One Nation is pleased to endorse Rikkie-Lee Tyrrell to lead the party's ticket in Northern Victoria.

The party will announce its full upper house ticket for the Victorian election in the coming week.

Ms Tyrrell's endorsement comes at the same time party leader Pauline Hanson is back in the media highlighting her policy commitments if One Nation came to power at the federal level.

Although not necessarily state responsibilities Ms Tyrell gave her view on some of the key policy commitments of Ms Hanson.

Reduce annual immigration to 130,000 while keeping visas for occupations facing workforce shortages, such as doctors and nurses.

"Immigration policy sits at the federal government level but most people know that we don't have the essential services such as health and housing to meet the demand of the population we already have so a circuit-breaker is required. My electorate of Northern Victoria faces serious workforce shortages, so it is important to allow skilled migrants on working visas in to assist with this."

Reduce spending on the NDIS by targeting waste and also abolish Aboriginal affairs departments.

"In a Victorian context, I totally oppose the Victorian Government's Treaty and the millions of dollars it will waste, just to appease one race of people. We are all Victorians and there should not be a separate body just for one particular race."

To scrap the climate change department, abolish net zero policies and withdraw Australia from the Paris Agreement.

"I have always opposed the robbing of prime agricultural land to build renewable energy projects. If people want to put solar panels on the roof at home they are more than welcome, but the Victorian Government's obsession with net zero by pushing through unwanted transmission lines, solar panels and wind turbine without any consultation is a disgrace."

She would cut all funding for the SBS and strip the ABC of the majority of its taxpayer funding.

"Funding for SBS and the ABC is a matter for the federal government, but I stand with Pauline in recognising the important role regional ABC media outlets play for people in the bush."

Shing and D'Ambrosio depart ministries

ON Thursday, July 30, Premier Ben Carroll announced that Lily D'Ambrosio and Harriet Shing would be leaving the ministry and would not be recontesting their seat at November's state election.

The retirement of Health Minister Harriet Shing is of particular relevance in Alexandra as the proposed merger between Alexandra District Health and Eastern Health has been approved by the boards but requires ministerial sign off. She has only been the Health Minister since April 2026, along with her other most recent ministries of Ambulance Services and Water.

Lily D'Ambrosio has most recently been Minister for Climate Action, Energy and Resources and the State Electricity Commission, all since December 2022.

Change to electoral act proposed

UNDER the current electoral system, parties can direct how preferences flow through group voting tickets.

This means candidates can win Upper House seats through deals made rather than direct support from voters.

The Electoral Amendment (Miscellaneous Matters) Bill 2026, introduced into the Victorian Parliament this week, will abolish group voting tickets.

This will end 'preference whispering', where parties strike complex preference deals that can see candidates elected with only a small share of the primary vote.

A new above-the-line voting system will require voters to number at least five groups in order of preference. Those preferences will then flow to candidates in the order they appear below the line for each party or group.

This will put voters in control of their preferences making our elections fairer and more transparent. This change will also bring Victoria into line with other states.

The reforms will also require the Victorian Electoral Commission to publish information about new political parties, because a party's name does not always tell voters who is behind it or where their preferences may flow.

The information will be publicly available so Victorians can make more informed decisions.

Premier Ben Carroll said, "Fair elections are the bedrock of democracy, and we are delivering these reforms to ensure Victorians can be confident in their electoral processes. Victorians shouldn't wake up after an election wondering how someone with only a handful of votes ended up in Parliament."

STUDENTS CELEBRATE 100 DAYS OF SCHOOL

EILDON: Has anyone checked the water at Lake Eildon? There might be something in the water because the junior classroom at Eildon Primary School aged overnight. Grey hair, wrinkles, walking sticks and cardigans appeared as the students transformed into little old ladies and gentlemen to celebrate some very special milestones: prep students reached 100 days of school, year one celebrated 300 days and year two marked an impressive 500 days of learning. The classroom was full of laughter as the ‘Senior Citizens’ enjoyed a day of fun activities celebrating just how much they’ve learned and grown. Pictured are Shannon, Ruby, Lachlan, Daniel and Ellie-Mae, with Miss Whittaker at the end.

YEA: Prep students at Yea Primary School celebrated their 100th day of school by dressing a little wild, creating colourful animal masks, and taking part in a range of fun 100-themed learning activities throughout the morning. The celebrations continued with a class party filled with delicious treats and an opportunity to reflect on everything the students have learned and achieved over their first 100 days of school. In the afternoon, the whole school joined in for wild-themed House Sports, featuring jungle dancing, a monkey madness obstacle course, croc-infested river crossings, and a daring tiger toss. It was a fantastic day full of laughter, learning, and celebration.

TOOLANGI: Prep students from Toolangi Primary School wearing fabulous outfits to celebrate 100 Days of School.

SCHOOLS TREE DAY: Students from Middle Kinglake Primary School taking part in Schools Tree Day. Pyjama Day was on the same day.

FANTASTIC EFFORT: Students from Middle Kinglake Primary School feeling proud of their effort.

DIG IT: One of the Toolangi students digging a hole for planting.

TREE PLANTING: The Toolangi Primary School planting took place on the school grounds.

TOOLANGI: On Monday, July 21, students at Toolangi Primary School took part in Schools Tree Day.

H5 avian influenza detected in Victoria

H5 BIRD flu has been detected in Victoria for the first time. The disease was detected in a greater crested tern found at Portland.

Victoria's Chief Veterinary Officer Dr Graeme Cooke said on Thursday, July 30, "Preliminary testing has indicated H5 bird flu in a single greater crested tern found in Portland. Further genetic testing is underway at CSIRO's Australian Centre for Disease Preparedness at Geelong to formally confirm this result."

By Monday, August 3, there were seven positive cases in Victorian greater crested terns.

Although distant from Murrindindi Shire, there have now been 55 confirmed or presumed positive cases in Australia, so keep an eye out and ensure that dogs are kept on leashes and away from dead birds and that cats are kept inside.

Take a photo or recording and immediately report any birds which appear unwell or deceased due to unknown causes to the Emergency Animal Disease Hotline on 1800 675 888. Avoid contact with sick or dead birds.

Victorian Farmers Federation President, Ryan Milgate said, "Farmers should review their biosecurity plans and keep an eager lookout for any unusual illness or unexplained bird deaths... While this detection is concerning, it's not unexpected and the wider agriculture industry has been undertaking an enormous amount of preparation over the past few months for this very moment."

"Importantly, this detection is in a wild bird. There has been no spread to commercial poultry flocks or any agricultural environment at this stage, and the risk to human health remains very low.

"We are continuing to work closely with government and industry as the response continues.

"Good biosecurity remains our best defense against the spread of disease. We strongly encourage all livestock producers, not just poultry farmers to review their biosecurity plans, ensure they reflect current risks, and remain alert for any sick or dead birds or unusual signs of disease on or near their property."

Agriculture Victoria has called for farmers and backyard poultry owners to review their biosecurity practices to protect their birds from disease.

"Poultry owners can help protect their birds by keeping sheds, yards and equipment clean, quarantining new birds and limiting contact between poultry and wild birds," Dr Cooke said.

"Always make sure your footwear is clean and wash your hands before and after handling your birds or eggs."

Eggs, poultry and game meat are safe to eat when properly handled and cooked according to standard food safety practices.

Further information about protecting poultry and other birds can be found at tinyurl.com/yvmtetup

The Alexandra Poultry Club Show is coming up on Sunday, August 9 in the Poultry Pavilion at the Alexandra Showgrounds. Secretary Tony Milton has advised that the show will still be going ahead. At this stage, there has been no directive from the Victorian Poultry Fanciers Association to cancel any poultry shows in Victoria. The Victorian Poultry Fanciers Association take advice from Agriculture Victoria.

High-angle rescue near Strath Creek Falls

ON the evening of Saturday, August 1, emergency services were paged to a high-angle rescue incident in Mount Disappointment.

VICSES and CFA High-Angle Rescue crews successfully retrieved two patients in difficult terrain near Strath Creek Falls. They undertook a highly-complex high-angle rescue to return the patients to level ground.

VICSES and CFA worked together for more than four hours, with technical rescue teams using rope rescue systems to access the patients and affect their rescue.

In addition to Victoria Police and Ambulance Victoria members, local volunteer units which took part in the rescue included SES Marysville, SES Alexandra, Strath Reedy Creek CFA and Yea CFA.

$1.7M for AusNet Energy Resilience Community Fund recipients

FIFTEEN councils and community groups across Victoria will receive close to $1.7 million from the final round of Major Grants funding from AusNet's Energy Resilience Community Fund.

AusNet Executive General Manager Distribution, Andrew Linnie, said the grants support community-led projects that build long-term resilience and provide practical support during outages and extreme weather events.

"These projects are important because they are shaped and delivered by communities themselves. Local councils, community organisations and volunteers know what they need and have turned that knowledge into practical solutions that keep people safe, connected and supported," said Mr Linnie.

ERCF-funded projects are creating trusted local places and mobile solutions that keep lights on, phones charged, food and medicines refrigerated, communications available and essential services operating during prolonged power outages and emergency events.

"Grant funding backs local leadership with the infrastructure, education and preparedness communities need to look after each other before, during and after events," he said.

Through the Energy Resilience Community Fund, AusNet has supported the creation of over 90 community resilience hubs, with many operational and ready for community use now and for future emergency events.

Murrindindi Shire Council received $113,000 to install an integrated solar, battery and generator-backed power system at Yea Saleyards. The project will enable up to three days of power for lighting, communications, amenities, water and animal welfare during power outages and emergency events.

SOLUTIONS

Six months on / The Longwood bushfires in the Murrindindi Shire

By DIANNE GOSCHNICK

It's now six months since our lands were stripped
When a raging fire razed and ripped
Wiping out all within its path
And now we are dealing with the aftermath.

Although so random it weaved and rolled
So many homes, sheds and livestock were amongst the toll
As well as their fodder, grass and hay
We will never forget that fateful day.

You may now see grasses green upon the hills
But what you don't see are the mounting bills
With recent rains turning black to green
Some would say they can't see where the fire has been.

Believe me now, this may be true
But the real cost of this disaster has somewhat grew
Along with the costs of living also beyond so many Unable to pay property insurance, some haven't any.

So many out there struggling just to survive
Although making it through the fires, they are thankful to be alive

And with winter upon us there are many still out in the cold
Unsure where to turn to, some quite young, others now old.

Some have moved on, their lands left behind
For a more comfortable lifestyle and a home to find
Some may return, but some still unsure
As life as they knew it, not the same as before.

While the hills and the paddocks maybe looking so green
The vivid realization where disaster has been
With lifetime memories and homes burnt and charred
People's lives and souls will be forever scarred.

So spare a thought and lend a hand
To help those impacted to restore their homes and land
And improve their wellbeing so they can soon return
To move forward in life, something they really yearn.

Thinking of the many dealing with the aftermath of the January bushfires, please know there is support out there to help people through this tough time.

Daffodil Day celebrates 40th anniversary

CANCER Council Victoria's iconic fundraiser, Daffodil Day, will mark 40 years of hope this August with bunches of daffodils on sale across the state, helping to raise money for vital research and giving hope for a cancer-free future.

This year, Daffodil Day takes place on Thursday, August 20, with Cancer Council aiming to raise more than $5.5 million across the country.

Lyrian Fleming-Parsley, Head of Fundraising and Communications at Cancer Council Victoria, urged the community to show its support this Daffodil Day and play an important part in helping drive world-class cancer research.

"For 40 years, Daffodil Day has united Australians in giving hope to those impacted by cancer," Ms Fleming-Parsley said.

"Every donation helps fund world-class research, bringing us closer to better treatments and better outcomes for people facing cancer."

As the only charity working across every area of every cancer, Cancer Council Victoria drives and supports life-saving research, prevention and support programs.

In the last five years alone, it has invested more than $138 million into cancer research, contributing to breakthroughs in prevention, screening, early detection and treatment.

Ms Fleming-Parsley said recent data from the Victorian Cancer Registry highlighted both the progress being made and the work still to be done.

"Victoria recorded its highest-ever number of cancer diagnoses in 2024, but advances in screening, early detection and treatment are estimated to have saved 23,900 Victorian lives over the past five years," she said.

"While research is helping more Victorians survive cancer than ever before, the record number of diagnoses shows there is still so much more work to do."

Cancer remains the leading cause of death in the state, with 33 Victorians dying from the disease each day.

"Nearly all of us have been impacted by cancer, whether directly or through the experience of a loved one, and it's incredibly sad that about one in two Victorians will be diagnosed with cancer by the age of 85," Ms Fleming-Parsley said.

"That's why every person who supports Daffodil Day this month, including buying daffodils on August 20, can feel proud knowing they're helping fund life-saving research and supporting Victorians affected by cancer at every stage of their journey."

Victorians can support Daffodil Day in August through making a donation, holding a fundraising event, get involved in the Daffodil Day Dip, or buy daffodils from one of the Daffodil Day stalls.

NEED FOR FEED SENDS ANOTHER AMAZING DELIVERY

NEED for Feed came back into the Longwood Fire area on Saturday, July 25. They had lunch in Euroa, put together by the Euroa Lions Club, before spreading out into the area.

There were an amazing 21 trucks carrying 760 bales, shared to 66 fire-affected farmers from Longwood to Highlands to Terip Terip to Yarck.

So far since the fires, Need for Feed has delivered 200 truckloads of hay to farmers in the area, nearing 8000 bales.

The drivers are all volunteers, and they get reimbursed fuel from donations by different people.

On the Saturday night,

Alexandra Events put on a Christmas in July. There was a barbecue with Alexandra Events supplying the meat and a few drinks. The Lions Club of Alexandra cooked the meat.

Andrew Embling from Alexandra Events explained, "We held it over at the Alexandra Racetrack because it was somewhere where we could park the trucks. Around 16 of the truck stayed and enjoyed night, just getting around together and having a talk."

The trucks came from as far away as Ulverstone in Tasmania, as well as trucks from Portland, Hamilton, Cobram, Shepparton, and Upper Beaconsfield.

Andrew added, "Alexandra

Events and Need Feed would like to thank Andrew Armstrong because we couldn't get the trucks into some of the places because it was so wet, so we made a bit of a stack pile up where the farmers will come and pick them up at Andrew Armstrong's area, so there were four trucks went into there. We had a couple of other blokes to thank there as well, Daniel Wales and also Tom Swanton, who came and helped unload the trucks. Need for Feed is a Lions project. They do a great job right through floods, droughts and fires, but are always there to do it. We also had a couple of Marysville Lions came in with a load on the tray truck."

NEED FOR FEED: Andrew Lineman, Rennee Pennell, Graeme Troutseek and Phillip Radford.

Long-standing Oaklands Hunt Club purchases property in Flowerdale

THE prestigious Oaklands Hunt Club has purchased a new base of operations in the Flowerdale area, bringing their efforts to manage Victoria's rampant fox population and promote equestrian activities to the Murrindindi Shire.

Oaklands Hunt Club was formed in 1888 and is one of the longest-running and most prolific hunt clubs in Victoria, with rich history and traditions.

Following the loss of their traditional property due to land rezoning on Somerton Road at Oaklands Junction five years ago, the club began the search for a new home. This happened to be a property with over 2000 acres in Flowerdale.

Oaklands Hunt Club President, Joanne Stubbs, who has been a member of the club for around 50 years, was kind enough to talk with this newspaper about their future.

"We are going to be an equestrian hub in the area," Joanne said.

"It will take us a few years to get to that stage and to put in the infrastructure so that we have yards for horses, we have cross-country courses, we have arenas, that sort of thing. It is also the home for us, the Oaklands Hunt Club."

The club committee will be meeting in November to finalise their business plan and strategy moving forward. They are hoping to move their approximately 60 foxhounds and two full-time staff onto the property by the end of the year, but the kennels still need building before that can happen. They have the necessary permits.

"The community here has been extremely welcoming," Joanne said.

"Murrindindi Shire Council has been a breath of fresh air to deal with and even the mayor came along to our opening day, and we had the planning permit for the kennels before we took possession. And the building permit was done three weeks after that. They were so welcoming."

"From when we took possession of this property, we had an event here with trail riders on the Saturday from the trail riding club. Then an afternoon tea for all the locals to come and meet us. And then the next day had a hunt from here. From that weekend, we got 32 new members."

We want to encourage non-riding people, but who are still part of the area, to be part of whatever events we organize. We'll hold that sort of stuff in the off seasons so we can get more involved with the locals rather than worrying about the hounds going to different places every week.

OAKLANDS HUNT CLUB PRESIDENT, JOANNE STUBBS

The plan is to Airbnb the main house and the stone cottage, mostly for people who can bring their horses and ride around the property.

They have a separate area up the back of the property, more like a campsite, which is suitable if people want to bring dogs to hunt (given dogs can't be too close to the foxhound kennels because of cross diseases, etcetera). The other two houses on the property are allocated for the club's staff to live in.

"The hounds need to be fed twice a day. They need to be walked out every day, exercised. You often can't exercise all of them together, so you might have to take them in two different groups," Joanne said.

"You need to organise for cleaning the kennels, be there to determine if a vet needs to come or anything like that. It's a full-time job."

The shearing shed on the property will slowly become their club room area. However, if the club have people agisting sheep on the land, then they'll be using the shearing shed for shearing. They also plan to run cattle.

"Our plans are to also have a social club for the area operate out of the shearing shed. We're in the throes of getting a liquor license so that we can run it like a club," Joanne said.

"We want to encourage non-riding people, but who are still part of the area, to be part of whatever events we organize. We'll hold that sort of stuff in the off seasons so we can get more involved with the locals rather than worrying about the hounds going to different places every week."

The fox hunting season for the club runs from the first weekend in May through to mid-September every year, leaving the horses still fit to compete at the Melbourne Show. They normally run two hunts per week during winter.

Their calendar is pre-prepared, and they run everything past the Department of Agriculture and are very conscious of following proper legislation and rules.

"We have to gain a licence to hunt fox, and our foxhounds are not allowed to kill the fox," Joanne explained.

"Our huntsman is in charge of the hounds. They stay out front of the rest of the riders, who are not to interfere with them. He will move the hounds across the paddock to a piece of cover, such as a plantation, and then he will signal on the horn for the hounds to disperse and start to work, see if they can sniff out a fox."

The Oaklands Hunt Club has around 65 to 70 members of varying skill levels.

"We have a variety of different members riding levels. Some compete in show jumping or eventing in the off season and some just go on trail rides. Some don't like to jump at all," Joanne said.

"Equestrian is the only sport where men and women compete equally at an Olympic level. So as such that tradition of being on an equal level has followed through the sport."

"All the different hunt clubs around in the regional areas know who they are, know when the competitions and the hunts take place, and they just want to eradicate foxes. It's not as formal as the UK."

"You get a lot of country riders, kids from pony clubs, kids from riding or adult riding clubs, things like that, that will participate in a hunt during winter. And it's often just to get out during the cold weather."

"We welcome anyone as long as they're a capable rider. And we do have entry level rides at the beginning of the season, where we invite people along to see if they actually enjoy it."

The Oaklands Hunt Club will be part of the Hunt Clubs Association of Victoria ball at the Flowerdale Estate in August, becoming part of the shire community and bringing an added aspect of interest to the local area.

Alexandra's Geoff McClure wins A Grade and pairs competition at Mansfield Clay Target Club

MANSFIELD Clay Target Club welcomed shooters from near and far on Sunday, July 19 for its monthly competition, with a crisp winter morning setting the scene for a lively day on the range. Despite a cold, foggy start and a touch of frost underfoot, the weather soon cleared and the day shaped up beautifully for competitors and spectators alike.

Shooters representing Mansfield, Woods Point, Numurkah, Euroa, Alexandra, Melbourne Cricket Club, Mt Bogong and even Perth took part, all keen to test their skills across three competitive events.

The day opened with a 50-target medley, made up of 25 targets Double Barrel and 25 targets Single Barrel.

Rob Kirley from Mansfield claimed the overall win, finishing with an excellent 57/60 after a shoot-off. In A Grade, Geoff McClure from Alexandra secured victory with 56/60, also after a shoot-off. Euroa's Leon Tonks took out B Grade, while Mansfield's Peter Evans topped C Grade.

The second event raised the challenge with 10 pair Double Rise, requiring competitors to hit two targets at once rather than just one.

Andrew Cameron from Melbourne Cricket Club led the way in AA Grade, while Andrew Jacotine from Euroa took out A Grade. Numurkah's John Fothergill won B Grade, and Stuart Harrison claimed C Grade.

For the final event, competitors teamed up for 20 pair Deauville Doubles, bringing the day to an exciting close.

With a flawless score of 20/20, Andrew Cameron from Melbourne Cricket Club and Geoff McClure from Alexandra proved too strong, taking out the event in impressive style. Close behind were Numurkah's John Fothergill and Nathan Morris, who finished second with a strong score of 19/20.

All in all, it was a terrific day of competition, camaraderie and winter sunshine at Mansfield Clay Target Club.

Next month, attention turns to the Mansfield-Woods Point Shield, where teams will battle it out for bragging rights and the chance to have their names added to the shield.

John Norfolk claims monthly medal with a clear margin

By DAVE SILVERMAN

NOT a huge amount of golf to report on at Alexandra Golf Club last week, as the threat of bad weather once again played havoc with the numbers.

Only five men teed off last Tuesday for the now standard Stableford competition, despite the conditions being fairly benign. Greg Ebinger was the runaway winner with 39 points, with second spot going to Russell Purcell on 30, and Billy Wind in third on 29.

Russell claimed the nearest the pin on seven, and 17 went to Greg.

There was no golf played last Wednesday, as the ladies failed to achieve a quorum. "Too wet and cold" was the official verdict.

Thirteen players turned out last Saturday for the August Monthly Medal round, lured by the promise of a fine, sunny day. Sponsored by Burnsies Pizza, the tee-off time was 11am, and for the first couple of hours all golfers felt a little bit cheated, as the fog persisted until about 1pm, when the sun made a welcome appearance, and the remainder of the afternoon was, as promised, warm and sunny.

The Medal winner, by a very clear margin, was John Norfolk with a score of 85 nett 70, with second-placed Mick Holohan carding a nett 76. Third and fourth spots were filled respectively by Russell Purcell and Shane McGorlick, both on 77.

John took out nearest the pin on two on his way to the win, Burnsie claimed five and 12, seven fell to Bruce Flanders and Greg Ebinger took 18, a bright spot in a fairly forgettable day by his standards.

John and Shane shared the honour of the fewest putts, both recording only 29 for the round.

Three degree morning doesn't deter golfers in Eildon

By PUTTAMATIC

HELLO everyone and welcome to the Eildon Golf Club weekly report. On a cool morning that started with only three degrees and the day that the club celebrate thoroughbred horses' birthday, members didn't seem to see a lot of thoroughbreds in last week's competition.

Although there were only six players everyone was in great humour and as the day warmed up it turned out a day for golf with good friends. The course was a bit wet under foot but the greens played fantastic.

Winner last week was Leigh Munro with 31 points, second Kerry Power 29, ball run Rod Taylor 26. Nearest the pin winners, Leigh Munro on the 11th, John Matthews 12th, Jezza Magee 14th, no winners on the third or fifth, no winners in the drink birdie holes last week, Super Six winner was Kerry Power.

The club ran a side team's match last week and team Munro, Power and Long took out the chocolates earning a ball for each player. Entry draw winner last week was Rod Taylor and Leigh Munro had a spin with the swindle draw.

Next week will be a stroke round, congratulations to all winners and look forward to seeing you at the club soon.

MARYSVILLE GOLFERS RETURN IN MORE REASONABLE WEATHER

By LESLEY RUNDLE

A WEEK of reasonable weather saw a number of golfers return to the two weekly competitions at Marysville Golf Club. The Thursday nine holers played stroke on the back nine holes and the winner was Brian Worcester followed by Mark Alexander who also won the nearest the pin on the 11th hole. Gail Leigh won nearest the pin on the 18th and the putting with 15 putts.

The 'fair weather golfers' came out of the woodwork last Saturday to play for the August monthly medal. Gail Leigh (12) with 75 nett was the ladies medal winner followed by Sabrina Stow (24) with nett 82. Drew Kaempkes (11) won the men's medal with nett 72 on a countback from Brian Worcester (19). The nearest the pins were won by Drew Kaempkes, Peter Lilley, Glen Rattay and Richard Clark who also won the Golden Shot. Hayden Ruddock won the putting with 27.

On Thursday the Dalhousie Veterans will play a three-person ambrose Presidents Cup at Marysville with a 9am arrival for a 9.30am tee off. For a $20 annual fee all Dalhousie golfers over 55 years of age are encouraged to join the Veterans competition and enjoy playing on various courses around the district. Next Saturday all golfers will play a stableford round.

The Rebels travelled to Yarra Glenn to play the river pigs on their home ground knowing a win would secure the double chance in the finals.

A loss and their opponents double chance remained a reality with two rounds remaining.

As expected with so much at stake the game opened with fierce tackling at a frantic pace with Yarra Glenn going to the main break leading 47 to Alexandra's 28.

The Rebels came out after half time recording a seven goal to one goal quarter, 16 points up at three quarter time.

Not to be denied Yarra Glenn opened the last quarter with two quick goals scoring eight for the quarter to the Rebels' four goals in a hectic last quarter with scores level with two minutes to go.

UNDER 18S

The Alexandra Rebels Under 18s have been a terrific group of young men who have banded together throughout the season.

While wins have been hard to come by, their commitment, determination and team-first attitude have never wavered, and on Saturday they were rewarded with a well-deserved victory over Yarra Glen.

With a full team of 20 players, the Rebels were determined to bring home the four points.

The opening term was a tight, defensive contest, with both sides only managing behinds.

However, the Rebels found another gear in the second quarter, piling on 3.3 while holding Yarra Glen scoreless to head into the main break with all the momentum.

Yarra Glen responded strongly after half-time, kicking 3.4 to Alexandra's 1.4, reducing the Rebels' lead to just one goal at the final change.

With the game on the line, the boys refused to give in.

They continued to work hard for one another in the final term, adding another two goals while restricting Yarra Glen to just three behinds to secure a fantastic 15-point victory.

The win was a fitting reward for a group that has shown resilience and commitment all season.

Coach Sam Kidd was incredibly proud of his players and the effort they have put in throughout the year.

As you would expect, the team song was sung loud and proud after the final siren.
